The President Means It
Another Strike
A Priest's Courage
A Gambler's End

President Harding has told the workers emphatically, and the railroad owners still MORE emphatically, that the strike is a threat against the entire nation, must end.

He has made the railroad men know that he means it, and the strike will end. You may write that down.

The railroad owners protest that they must be allowed "to punish" their men by depriving old employes of their seniority rights, transferring those rights to new men taken on to help beat the strike.

They say they are afraid that if they don't give seniority to the new men they will not be able to get enough men when another strike comes along.

They needn't worry about that. Human nature is a feeble thing, and there will always be plenty of men to sell out their fellows and take their jobs if they can get them.

As the railroad strike in the nation approaches its end there comes the heavy shadow of another strike threatening the city of Chicago—one that would tie up all the street cars, surface and elevated, injuring the great city as a railroad strike would injure the merchants.

Those that know say the Chicago menace is what is called a "labor demonstration," the men going on strike, not that they are dissatisfied now, but to prevent future cuts in wages by showing their power.

No such demonstration should be necessary. They would not happen if the people owned their street cars and managed them for their own convenience and profit, as they should do. You don't see such "demonstrations" in the postoffice service.

The street car is to a city what elevators are to a great office building or hotel. The owner of the building would consider himself an idiot if he allowed outsiders to own his elevators, annoy his tenants and make them walk up.

The owners of a great city are foolish to allow outsiders to own their street cars, a majority of the "owners" living a thousand miles from Chicago.

For an example of rare courage consider the case of Father Daly celebrating the mass in St. Patrick's, Cathedral in New York. An unfortunate man, crazed by religion, knife in hand, rushed to the altar and to the feet of the priest officiating.

Instead of striking the priest, as all feared he would do, he slashed upon his own bared breast the sign of the cross, cutting deep into the flesh, saying he wanted to give his blood as a sacrifice.

Father Daly quieted the poor creature with a few words and went on with the mass, unmoved. That was his important work. And THAT is discipline.

Charley Wells "broke the bank of Monte Carlo" in the nineties. His life ends at eighty-one by suicide in Paris.

He didn't break the bank; nobody ever does that. Each gambling roulette wheel in the morning, each "thirty and forty" table, receives a certain amount of cash when it opens. When the cash is gone, which happens sometimes, but not often—all gambling establishments are "sure things" for the owners—officials come in, test the roulette wheel with a steel die or investigate the losing "thirty-forty" table. Then the game goes on with more money.

Once, conniving with a gambling house servant, some ingenious gentleman pinched very slightly all the black compartments of a roulette wheel. The eye of chance could see the difference, although the eye of man could not, and the red won at least three times out of five all day. Hence the steel die to make sure that the trick has not been repeated.

The Greeks want permission to take Constantinople from the Turks. They say they can't permanently dispose of Turkey unless Greece can have Constantinople.

The Allies, led by England, say the Greeks mustn't touch Constantinople. And as Greece cannot well fight the Allied nations,

15 KILLED IN RAIL WRECK

Harding Proposes That Seniority Rights of Strikers Be Unimpaired

Cincinnati, Aug. 1.—Fifteen persons were reported killed and twenty-five to thirty injured in a head-on collision today between a northbound negro excursion train and southbound passenger train No. 11 from Dayton on the Cincinnati, Lebanon and Northern Railroad at Lester station, a suburb of Cincinnati, today.

The theory was advanced that someone had forgotten orders that would have let the special train through in safety.

New York, Aug. 1. (By the Associated Press.)—President Harding's proposals for settlement of the nation-wide rail strike, made public today in connection with their considerations at a meeting of 148 road heads, were three in number.

The first sets forth that the roads and men should abide by wage decisions reached by the Railroad Labor Board.

The second would provide that all law suits brought by either side in connection with the strike should be withdrawn and that disputes arising out of the walkout should be left with the labor board for settlement.

SENIORITY UNIMPAIRED.

The third proposal—And the one calculated to provoke the most discussion when the conference meets again this afternoon for a vote of acceptance or rejection—suggests that strikers be taken back on the basis of seniority which they enjoyed before they walked out.

This brief summary of the Harding program was made public by R. L. Binkherd, secretary to the head of the American Association of Railway Executives, at the same time that the text of the administration's proposals were being given out in Washington.

While no official expression of opinion could be obtained, it was understood that the executives had compared notes on conditions on their lines and had come to the conclusion that it would be unfair to their loyal employes to accept the President's third proposal.

Restoration of all the strikers, it was said, would mean that the roads would be compelled to dismiss many new employes—a majority of whom are ex-service men.

SAYS TERMS UNACCEPTABLE.

One man from the conference room, when asked if there was any likelihood that the executives would accept the seniority proposal, declared:

"Never in the world."

The conference adjourned until this afternoon without taking action after Secretary of Commerce Hoover

GIRL PREACHER GOES ON WARPATH

Mary Agnes Vichenstein, the fourteen-year-old "flapper evangelist," defies anybody in Boston to prevent her from speaking here because of the child labor law.

Because of the interest aroused over her coming, the public meeting here Wednesday night will be conducted in Lorimer Hall, Tremont Temple.

It was originally planned to hold it in a Pemberton square hall.

The flapper "Billy Sunday" also will preach at Emmanuel Church, Magazine and Putnam streets, Cambridge.

"If any such tactics are tried, I will close up every dancing school in the State of Massachusetts where children are taught to dance, and I will also darken the doors of every moving picture house that exhibits children's pictures.

"CONTEMPTIBLE TACTICS."

"Let it be plainly understood that I am a law abiding citizen first, last and always; but when people stoop to such contemptible tactics as to try to prevent the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ, it is time to put forth every ounce of one's energy to fight this form of the devil and his nefarious workings.

"I violate no labor laws because I receive absolutely no remuneration, whatever money may be received free will offerings goes to support a missionary. I get no pay. I want none.

"I have been offered $100 for a single sermon and $150 a week to travel with a Chautauqua, but I have turned a deaf ear. I will fight this outrage with my own money.

Chicopee Man Shoots Brother-in-Law While Family Looks On

Chicopee, Aug. 1.—Patrolman John J. Maloney, walking along Bonnieville avenue today on his way home, saw a hatless man running in his direction, a revolver in his hand.

He drew his own gun and demanded the man to halt. The man obeyed.

"I've just killed my brother-in-law," he announced.

He said he was Anthony Pash of No. 2 Arthur street. The policeman accompanied him to No. 3 Bonnieville avenue. Near the hedge in front of the house was the body of Stanley Grotowski, Polish banker and director of the Chicopee Industrial corporation.

Mrs. Grotowski was sobbing over the body of her husband. Her two children gazed at the body and wept.

QUARREL OVER MONEY.

"He owed me $1,500," Pash told Maloney. "I've been trying to collect for a long time. He kept putting me off all the time. I am married. I have five children. I am not so wealthy as he is.

"I called today to see if he would not pay some of the money to me. I met him as he was coming out of the house. We argued about the money. He said he was short of funds and couldn't pay me any part of it. We quarrelled. I drew my revolver and fired two shots at him."

Mrs. Grotowski and the children heard the shots and came running to the street just as Pash started from the scene. Grotowski had been instantly killed.

HELD AS SLAYER.

"I was going to the police station to give myself up," Pash told Maloney.

Pash was arraigned in District Court. He pleaded not guilty and was held for a hearing on August 4.

PICKFORDS SNAPPED IN LOS ANGELES

HONEYMOONERS ON COAST

First photograph of Marilynn Miller, the vivacious "Sally" star, and Jack Pickford, snapped in Los Angeles shortly before their marriage. They expect soon to go on a honeymoon automobile tour through California, and are expected in Boston some time next month.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—The Jack Pickfords are having a bathing suit honeymoon. Upsetting all calculations, they are not motoring along California's boulevards, nor are they using the hotel reservations made at Santa Barbara, Del Monte, Lake Tahoe and way stations.

They are splashing in the ornate swimming pool at the Douglas Fairbanks-Mary Pickford estate in the hills of Beverly.

Telegrams of congratulations continued to arrive hourly from hundreds of places between the Atlantic and Pacific. Secretaries, wading through the mass of correspondence, were sending engraved cards of appreciation in every mail. Dozens of the telegrams were from film fans in eastern cities whom neither bride nor bridegroom know.

The decision of the Pickfords to cancel their honeymoon motor tour was said to have been largely due to the anxiety of "Mother" Charlotte Pickford to complete, "Garrison's Finish," the production in which Jack is to be starred. An extensive cast is loafing while Pickford does not work.

STRIKE TIES UP CHICAGO CAR LINES.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Chicago's street and elevated lines were idle today in one of the most complete local transportation tie-ups in the history of the city.

Approximately 20,000 trainmen went on strike at four o'clock this morning, bringing to a climax a situation that has been moving toward a walkout for several weeks.

More than a million Chicagoans walked to work or rode in trucks, private automobiles, taxicabs or subway trains or steam railroads.

The strike is in protest against wage reductions ordered by the traffic companies and an effort by the companies to re-establish the nine-hour day.

ATTACKS PELLETIER LETTER OF BAY STATE COMMITTEE OF 100

"Let me solemnly warn you, as a Bishop of the Catholic church, not to allow outsiders, who have not the true interests of the church at heart as I have, to influence you in the conduct of this convention."

The warning of the noted church dignitary caused a stir, and was taken as a direct rebuke to the Massachusetts committee of 100, whose open letter to the delegates has caused a factional fight that the ranks of the famous organization is threatened to be split.

In the midst of the turbulent Knights of Columbus' fortieth annual convention, which opened today in Atlantic City, stood Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, ready to fight to the last ditch to prevent the open letter from 100 prominent Bay State Catholics condemning him for his utterance against the Supreme Court of Massachusetts for its action in finding Joseph C. Pelletier, then district attorney of Suffolk County, guilty of misconduct in office, from being introduced on the floor of the convention.

In a long distance telephone statement to the Boston American Grand Knight Flaherty so indicated his action.

"I don't see how they can get it in," said Supreme Knight Flaherty over the phone. The letter is with the resolutions committee. "They cannot get it in unless they get some clique to attempt to introduce it on the floor, and then"——. The head of the famous Catholic order laughed.

He also added with a laugh that—"I know what I'd like to do with it."

In his opening address at the convention later Mr. Flaherty made no reference to the Pelletier issue or to the letter signed by Greater Boston Catholics.

If the insurgents get the floor the charge will be made that the statement under Supreme Knight Flaherty's name criticising the Supreme Court in the Pelletier case was dictated by a group of Boston members of the Knights of Columbus and that Mr. Flaherty signed it under orders.

Mr. Pelletier, in a brief fiery statement given the Boston American today, branded the 100 Bostonians who signed the round robin as "Coo-coos, reformers and largely what we call 'Castle Irish.'" He denied that Mr.

SUPREME KNIGHT FLAHERTY DEFIES ATTACK OF INSURGENTS

FIGHTS TO BAR HUB LETTER FROM CONVENTION FLOOR

Flaherty had ever criticized the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

"I fail to see anyone among these men who has been at all helpful in service to the church to which they all so boastfully claim adherence."

The letter of the 100 is a continuation that bristles with condemnation of the once popular leader who led a delegation of Knights to Rome some time ago to pay respects to the late Pope. He is charged with being prejudiced and "misrepresenting and misjudging the decision of the Supreme Court, even previous to its announcement of 'guilty' in the Pelletier case."

In reply Mr. Flaherty and his supporters say, "Outsiders, though Roman Catholics, will not tell us how to run the Knights of Columbus."

Mr. Pelletier was supreme advocate of the Knights of Columbus at the time of his trial. He resigned a month ago, after having been removed from the office of district attorney by the Supreme Court and disbarred from legal practice. His trial was followed by a mid-Western clamor of Knights of Columbus officials demanding that he resign as supreme advocate or be removed.

Two factions developed through the controversy which today threatened to split the ranks of the Catholic order.

The open letter dropped into the shore resort on the eve of the convention was the spark that set off the fuse and flamed anew the bitter feeling that has existed for months between the supreme knight and his supporters and the men who call themselves insurgents and want Mr. Flaherty not only censored but removed.

Judge Joseph Moynihan and Ernest A. O'Brien of Detroit who until a year ago were friendly with Pelletier; Dr. John G. Coyle, state deputy of New York and floor leader of the largest single delegation, and E. G. Dunn of Iowa, and Benedict Elder of Kentucky, are leaders in their respective States against the Flaherty - Pelletier regime.

The statement of Supreme Knight Flaherty, charging that the Massachusetts Supreme Court was influenced in its decision in the Pelletier case by religious prejudice, and which was issued from headquarters in New York on January 26, said:

"Mr. Pelletier's record of continuous success in diverse fields of leadership has brought envy and hatred upon him, ostentatiously planned against him in a plea for removal by the Attorney-General of Massachusetts, but really levelled against the Catholic forces he represents."

In the March issue of Columbia, official K. of C. organ, it was declared editorially:

"The spectacle of a non-elective court removing an elective official without any appeal from its decision is abhorrent to American eyes, especially when it is known that this official was elected time and again after the charges on which he was removed had been aired before his constituents. Thomas Jefferson warned Americn against just such arrogance. When the jubilation of the Massachusetts forces of bigotry over the Pelletier removal is known as an effect, it requires no superior logic to identify the cause."

THE LETTER.

The letter, which is headed "Catholic Laymen's Committee, Edward V. Hickey, secretary," reads as follows:

"Sir Knight and fellow Catholic:

"Because the Knights of Columbus is regarded nationally and internationally, as representative of the great body of the American Catholic Laity, we, the undersigned Catholic laymen of the Archdiocese of Boston—intimately familiar with the facts—believe it our solemn duty to urge upon you the paramount obligation of repudiating the distorted utterances of your Supreme Knight, James A. Flaherty, regarding the recent 'Pelletier Case.'

"In these utterances he prejudges, misjudged and misrepresented the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, even previous to its announcement.

"By unanimous decision of its full bench of that Court Mr. Pelletier was convicted of gross misconduct. Two of the prosecuting attorneys and two members of that court are Roman Catholics of high standing, one of the latter a Knight of Columbus and former Grand Knight, the other a Regent of Georgetown University. Its decision removed Mr. Pelletier from the office of District Attorney. He made no defense at that trial, nor at the subsequent disbarment proceedings. He was disbarred from the practice of law. Finally, he has resigned the office of Supreme Advocate. Therefore, so far as the Knights of Columbus is concerned, he is no longer an issue.

IS COMPELLING ISSUE.

"The intemperate utterances of Supreme Knight Flaherty and of the editor of Columbia, official organ of the order, are, however, still a compelling issue. The Knights of Columbus must either assume or disavow responsibility for them. They involve not merely the organization itself, but the entire Catholic laity.

"The statements of the Supreme Knight being spread broadcast through the Associated Press, were the more far-reaching, more fraught with disaster to the organization which he presumed to commit, and to the faithful greater interests which it is assumed to represent. They demand prompt and decisive action by your body; compromise would be fatal; unfaltering allegiance to our institutions must not be left open to question.

LINKED WITH ANARCHY.

"His attack upon the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts—a court, today as for generations, revered throughout the nation—was as unwarranted as it was flagrant. He deliberately aligned the great organization of which he is the head, and for which he spoke, with those destructive forces—avowedly anarchistic—whose persistent aim is to tear down and to destroy the very foundations of constitutional liberty, law, order and legitimate authority, those priceless heritages of which the Knights of Columbus are stalwart champions and defenders.

REKINDLED INTOLERANCE.

"Equally baseless, indefensible, and dangerous to social tranquility and to the safety of the republic was his vicious attempt to rekindle the consuming flames of religious and racial intolerance, which, happily, here, had been dying out, and for whose lingering embers those outside the faith are not solely responsible. No more malign spirit could possibly be evoked; we have but to look abroad.

"As fellow-members of that historic church at whose divine altar we kneel in close communion we are confident you will feel a personal responsibility to weigh in conscience the enduring effect of your action in this vital crisis—to ignore all personal considerations—and to act solely with a view to promote the glory of God, the welfare of His church and the safety of the nation."

Among the 100 signers of the open letter are, Jeremiah E. Burke, superintendent of Boston schools; John H. Casey, attorney-at-law, former assistant United States district attorney; Patrick J. Deane, Waltham, attorney-at-law, former United States marshal, Boston, former Mayor of Waltham; John H. Faher, newspaper publisher, former president of Chamber of Commerce, United States of America; William F. Fitzgerald, Fitzgerald, Hubbard & Co., bankers and brokers; Henry E. Hagen, president New England Retail Shoe Merchants' Association; Augustine J. Daley, attorney-at-law, former Mayor of Cambridge; David D. Scannell, M. D., visiting surgeon Boston City Hospital and chairman Boston School Committee; John A. Sullivan, attorney-at-law and former corporation counsel for the City of Boston; Michael H. Sullivan, attorney-at-law, chairman Boston Finance Commission and former chairman Boston School Committee.

Bernard J. Rothwell, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, today telephoned the Boston American to learn why the name of Attorney Thomas A. Mullen had been omitted from the list of signers of the open letter.

"Mr. Mullin is very indignant," said Mr. Rothwell, "that his name was left out. He telephoned me today requesting that I see that it was included among the signers of the letter."

"Castle Irish" and "Meddlers," Says Pelletier

The statement issued by former District Attorney Pelletier follows:

"The statement in the morning press setting forth a protest of 100 men against Mr. James A. Flaherty, head of the Knights of Columbus because of his expression of continued faith and confidence in me is a piece of impertinence. In the first place Mr. Flaherty never criticized the Supreme Court and I challenge proof of any assertion to the contrary. If I were he I would teach the newspapers something about the law of libel.

The men who signed this statement are all of a kind—Goo-goos, reformers, and largely what we call "Castle Irish." It is a compliment to the Bar that so few were attracted to this interference with other people's business.

I think I am safe in saying that most of the signers are not members of the Knights of Columbus. I do not recognize one as ever having done anything to help the Knights of Columbus in its war work or other activities.

Indeed, I fail to see any one among them who has been at all helpful in service to the church to which they all so boastfully claim adherence.

The Knights of Columbus will take care of their own affairs, despite the effort of these meddlers, and if I know the society, and I think I do, they will never complain of the statement of Mr. Flaherty expressing faith in my integrity.

His leadership and sacrifice of all personal interests for twelve years as head of the Knights of Columbus is too well known, too much appreciated to permit them to yield to a false accusation of one hundred picked would-be reformers whose signatures were obtained only after a thorough canvass of the city extending over several weeks.

POISONED PIE KILLS THREE; BAKER HELD

New York, Aug. 1.—Charles Abrahamson, a baker, who had been discharged from Shelbourne's restaurant at Broadway and Twenty-sixth street, was arrested on a homicide charge today following an investigation of the poisoning of more than 100 persons—three of whom are dead—who ate in the restaurant yesterday.

Officials of the medical examiner's office reported that a quantity of berry pies, baked before Abrahamson left the restaurant's employ, had been heavily charged with arsenic.

Autopsies on the bodies of the three victims were ordered, to determine the nature of the poison which killed them, while officials of the medical examiner's office were conducting an investigation of the restaurant itself.

LANDLORD SHATTERED 'LOVE NEST' DREAM

MR. AND MRS. ROMANESQUE

First posed photograph of Alexander Romanesque, former cafe bus boy, and his bride, who was Miss Bessie Walton, sister of David Walton, the Boston "luncheon king." Below, their home attached to the bridegroom's restaurant at Revere Beach, where they are spending their honeymoon. The love nest" sign on the eating place has come down by order of the landlord.

Alexander Romanesque, former dishwasher in the Walton chain of restaurants, and self-styled descendant of royalty, who married Miss Bessie Walton, the gray-haired sister of the head of the chain of restaurants, is the lover whose dream has been crushed.

Alexander, in his early twenties, and his bride, twenty years his senior, decided to honeymoon in the young groom's restaurant at Revere. Romance was the ruling spirit in the honeymoon restaurant, and Alexander dreamed a dream.

He would give the restaurant an appropriate name. He called it the "Love Nest," and had a beautiful sign constructed telling the world of his decision.

Dr. D. W. Kenney, his landlord, failed to catch the spirit of romance and ordered the young husband to dismantle the "Love Nest" sign and replace it with another.

Now, instead of the romantic sign there is another, which tells the world that the young lover puts up lunches to take out, while another sign states that the name of the honeymoon restaurant is "The Oxford."

HURLEY DENIES HE DROVE RIEL WITNESS AWAY BY THREATS

DEFENDS HIMSELF ON STAND

Coaster Man Admits He Once Offered Job to Husband Who Now Accuses Him

John J. Hurley, Sr., disclaimed all knowledge of the mysterious disappearance of Miss Bessie Daly, a witness, when he resumed the stand today in the Riel divorce trial.

John J. Riel, a World War veteran, charges his wife, Frances A., and Hurley, Revere Beach and Nantasket amusement promoter, with misconduct on twenty-two occasions. Mrs. Riel is suing her husband for cruel and abusive treatment.

Miss Daly, summoned by Riel's side, has played a prominent part in the trial. Witnesses testified they overheard Hurley threaten to "send her away" during a conversation in the court house corridor. Then, a week ago Monday, Attorney John F. McNiff, Riel's counsel, informed the court that the Daly girl had fled in her "nightie" because of alleged threats made against her.

DID NOT THREATEN GIRL.

Hurley was cross-examined by Attorney McNiff.

A.—Did you tell Miss Daly to get out of town and go to Philadelphia? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you meet Miss Daly, the missing witness, at the beach a week ago last Friday evening? A.—I did. I think I had some talk with her.

Q.—Do you recall being a witness for Mrs. Riel in a non-support case in Chelsea Police Court? A.—I was put on the stand.

Q.—And did you testify that you and Mrs. Riel occupied the same room in the Riel house? A.—I didn't testify to anything like that.

Q.—Did you occupy adjoining rooms? A.—I don't remember.

OFFERED JOB TO RIEL.

Q.—At that time did you offer to give Mr. Riel a $40 a week job? A.—I offered him a job, but not at $40 a week.

Q.—Did you mean it when you offered it to him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then you didn't believe the stories Mrs. Cunningham and others had told you about Riel being after you? A.—Yes, I did, but I offered him the job.

Opposing counsel jokeyed over admissability of an alleged conversation between Harry A. Hawkes, a Riel witness, and Hurley. Attorney McNiff said:

"I think it should be admitted to show that Mr. Hurley endeavored to keep Mr. Hawkes out of this case. I should say this evidence is admissable to show that Hurley is conscious of his guilt." The court stated it did not care to go into it further.

Attorney McNiff:

Q.—Did you call at No. 257 Broadway, Chelsea, two weeks ago? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you call on a woman named Allen? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you ask her where Mr. Ellis was, and as a result what did you do? A.—I didn't do anything.

The Contents of Your Storeroom Will Yield Cash

An expensive habit which most people have, is that of putting into their storerooms pieces of furniture which they have replaced with new ones. In most cases it is never used again and it simply deteriorates in value.

When such furniture is usable there is always somebody who would be glad to buy it. You have only to let them know of its existence, and this can be done at small cost to you through a "For Sale" ad in The American.

Take account of the contents of your storeroom today and convert into cash the things which will never be of service again to you. It is the thrifty thing to do. Describe what you would sell in a Want Ad and send or bring it to had presented the administration's position.

Mr. Hoover entered the conference shortly before noon and remained only a short time.

"I simply presented the position of the administration and made some further explanations of President Harding's proposal which was already before the meeting," he said. "I did not take part in the discussions and I do not know whether the meeting will take any vote on accepting the President's proposal."

HOOVER WARNS OF CRISIS.

In presenting the text of the Harding proposal, the Cabinet officer emphasized the urgency of the strike situation and what he described as the need for accepting the administration's program at once.

When adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock, none of the conferees would venture an opinion on what action would be taken this afternoon.

Hooper Meets With Striking Shopmen

Chicago, Aug. 1 (By the Associated Press).—Executives of the six federated shop crafts went into conference today to consider President Harding's proposals for a settlement of their strike. Chairman Ben Hooper of the Railroad Labor Board was present at the meeting. He said he had no message to transmit from President Harding and refused to discuss the strike other than to say that he did not plan any immediate session of the Labor Board in connection with it.

Prior to the conference, B. M. Jewell, head of the shopmen, informed newspaper men that they "might as well take a vacation for a day or two." He said he expected no action from the meeting before tomorrow at the earliest.

Strike Halts Concord, N. H., Street Cars

Concord, N. H., Aug. 1.—Electric railroad service in this city suddenly ceased today when electricians in the power plant at Eastman's Falls, Franklin, struck and pulled the switches. It was said service would be resumed after some hours by means of local electric plants into service. The Manchester-Concord line was not affected. Troops are still stationed at Concord in the railroad strike emergency.

N. Y. Central Firm On Seniority Issue

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—The New York Central Railroad Company today posted notices in all its yards and shops over the entire system that it will not change its position on the priority question in the strike of shopmen and that "it will stand by the old men who remained at work and the new men employed since the strike," company officials here announced.

JOHN J. ASTOR GAVE BRIDE $1,200,000

New York, Aug. 1.—The ante-nuptial agreement made by the late Colonel John Jacob Astor with his intended wife, Madeline Talmadge Force, now Mrs. William K. Dick, and her father, William H. Force, granted her the income of property valued at $1,200,000.

Details of the agreement became public through the application of the United States Trust Company for permission to sell business property, the income from which was originally granted Mrs. Dick by the agreement. Business interests have made offers to buy the buildings for $1,200,000 and the application is made on the grounds that investment of this sum would yield yearly $14,000 more than the rental of $48,000 now paid.

Mrs. W. K. Dick.

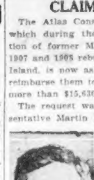
Colonel Astor and Miss Force were married in September, 1911. He was drowned in the sinking of the Titanic the following April. By the terms of the will his widow received the income from the trust fund of $5,000,000 and the use of the Astor mansion on Fifth avenue until her remarriage.

The property from which Mrs. Dick Lar has been receiving $46,000 yearly will go to Vincent Astor, Colonel Astor's son by his first wife, upon the death of his former stepmother. For this reason a copy of the petition will be sent to Mrs. Vincent Astor at her residence, which is declared to be in Paris.

DEER ISLAND WALL CLAIM IS REVIVED

The Atlas Construction Company which during the first administration of former Mayor Fitzgerald in 1907 and 1908 rebuilt a wall at Deer Island, is now asking that the city reimburse them to the extent of not more than $15,630.

The request was made by Representative Martin Hays of Brighton, who appeared before the Council, representing Frank J. Linehan, who was the company's president at the time the city entered with him this contract for the work.



Frank J. Linehan

An act was passed by the last Legislature providing for settlement as the firm asked. The company has since gone out of existence, but the purpose of the act is revived for the proper distribution of whatever sum the city granted. Mr. Hays stated that there was no legal claim against the city, simply a moral one.

ASK IF WIFE HAD RIGHT TO KILL

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Is pretty Mrs. Gladys Kirkland, husband-slayer, to blame for her act?

This is the question that is being discussed in gatherings of all kinds here. Mrs. Kirkland killed her husband after he had beat her. From the day they were married, she avers he beat her. Then she got desperate with fear. As he tried to pummel her, after dragging her from a taxi in which she had fled, she shot and killed him.

Then it was found that the husband was a hold-up man, a bootlegger, and he was wanted by the police for shooting a man last December.

Was the wife justified in slaying Kirkland? is the question that is being asked.

When a Pocket Twister Vamps a Man Into a Hat Shop, It's a Sure Sale, the Flapper Learns

But Selling Kellys to Dumb Dollies With Nothing but Time to Spare Isn't the Cat's Cuffs by a Long Shot

By THE FLAPPER

Selling chick chapeaus to the dumb dollies and the dizzy dames is not the upholstered job it may look to be in the pitcha. It is not, in other words, the gnu's garter.

Mr. Joseph Greenbaum stepped out of the window of the Paris Modes, Select Millinery, rubbing his hands gleefully.

"There," he said, with a pleased sigh. "I guess that'll catch 'em."

"What will?" I asked him.

"That radio velvet hat with the hen feathers on it. Today only $2.90," explained the boss. "Then when they come in you sell 'em the same haf, on'y with ostrich on it, or better yet, pheasant. See?"

"And how much is it, then?" I asked him.

The manager picked up one of the new Fall hats and examined the ticket inside.

THE LOWDOWN ON PRICES

"Here's the tag, plain as the nose on your face," he said. "No. 1109," he added mysteriously. "The outside numbers are the top price and the inside ones the bottom price. You gotta sell the hat somewhere between. But the nearer you come to top price the more commission you get, see? The top price on this hat is $10. You better see that you get it."

The beasel who had flapped in looked tough enough to eat lobsters without cracking the shell. Besides, she was a pinhead.

Kelly after kelly I tried on her nut, but all of 'em sunk right down to the bridge of her nose. Finally, in despair, I went in search of the head saleslady.

PEANUTHEAD BUYS

"A peanuthead," she said, when I found her. "That's easy. It's the big heads that're hard to sell. All you gotta do is hold your fist in the hat when you try it on. And," she added as I started back to the tough baby, "don't forget, I should get half the commission if you make the sale."

The bozark bought the next hat I tried on, without the least suspicion that she'd also bought parking space for one fairly good-sized flat.

When the wooden woman had ankled out I went back to figure out my split 'commission with Miss Cohen, the head saleslady. I found her in a fight-to-the-death with an obstinate customer.

"If you don't like the hat, why don't you say so?" Miss Cohen was arguing.

"It's a piece of junk," re turned the customer. "But it goes nice with my dress. Robbers you are, though. Eight-fifty for a nickel's worth of satin and a dime's worth of feathers. S'an outrage, that's what it is. I'll give you five dollars."

"Five dollars, she says," moaned Miss Cohen, pretending she was about to swoon from the shock. "She should say five dollars and live. Seven-fifty and you get it cheaper over my dead body."

SAVED BY A SURE SALE

An hour and fifteen minutes later the hat sold for $3.98, and Miss Cohen was a nervous wreck.

"Not even fifty cents commission," she ranted. "Sometimes I think it ain't worth it fightin' them. If they want the hat I'm nothing, give it to 'em and get some peace. An' then jus' when I get so discouraged, in comes a man an' lady together, and I clean up the boffos."

"Why!" I asked her.

"Oh, some pocket twister lassoes a sharpshooter an' camel walks him right into the old battery. The more expensive the hat the better the millinery miner likes it. And the poor bozo—all he can pipe is 'If you like it, dearie, take it,' and she takes it. No argue, no fist fight, no nothin'. A sure sale."

At this point the keen eyes of Miss Cohen glimmed a mixed pair just coasting into the shop and she interrupted herself to yell:

"A sale, a sale; we are saved."

TIME IS NO OBJECT TO FLAP SHOPPING

The dame in the mirra said that the bonnet was the mousses' mou stache. But when I told her the number of boffos that were written inside she nearly swooned. Time is no object with a flap shopping for a kelly. She'll work on you till she gets it down to the cash in hand, and may the best man win.

ALLEN IS GIVEN RIGHT TO SELL CLOSED BANK

Judge Crosby in Superior Court today authorized Banking Commissioner Joseph C. Allen to sell the assets of the Prudential Trust Company to the Commonwealth Trust Company, so as to more speedily wind up affairs of the former corporation.

As a result of the sale, it is said, depositors in the savings department will get 100 cents on the dollar, and those in the commercial department at least fifty per cent.

John E. Hannigan, liquidating agent of the Prudential, told Judge Crosby that in undertaking the purchase the Commonwealth Trust Company was doing a public service, inasmuch, as there was no profit in the transaction.

He said that $501,000 worth of notes in the commercial department would be purchased for $70,000. Most of this paper, he explained, was hopeless. In the savings department, notes showing a book value of $276,000, mainly in mortgages, will be sold for $141,000.

As soon as the Commonwealth acquires title to the assets, they are to be turned over to three trustees, to be administered for the benefit of depositors. These men are: George E. Mumford, president of the Commonwealth Trust Company; John E. Hannigan and Henry V. Cunningham.

Steps have been taken to devise similar plans in connection with other trust companies. By this means depositors will receive a larger return than might otherwise be possible.

the order probably will be obeyed.

England controls one door of the Mediterranean at Gibraltar. The other door, Constantinople, is now more important. That is the door through which Russia, if she started on her world travels, would come out into the ancient sea. The English wish to control that matter.

You are told by League of Nations newspapers that haven't yet got over the wild excitement of Armistice Day, "see what a lovely thing the League of Nations is! Greece wants to seize Constantinople and the League of Nations won't let her."

And you are asked with tears, "Why doesn't America join the League of Nations?"

The answer is, "It isn't the League of Nations, but the navy and guns of England that keep the Greeks from Constantinople."

It isn't our business, anyhow, what Greece does to Turkey, or vice versa. It will be time enough for us to intervene when things happen over here. The Lord has given us no mandate to manage Europe.

There is worry in Europe about strained relations between France and England. You are told by Lloyd George that new wars threaten. "With weapons and on a basis of killing more horrible than ever."

Sad news if true. But WE are not planning those killings. When we hear such news we should GET ready and KEEP ready—not rush across the ocean to get into trouble.

GIRL SOBS OUT HER LOVE FOR MRS. TROTTER

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug.1.—Weeping on the witness stand, demure Miss Florence Moody, mother of the "mission love baby," faced her accuser, Mrs. Mel Trotter, wife of the evangelist.

"I loved Mrs. Trotter as though she were my own mother," declared the girl.

"I believed that she loved me well. It was as though I had been her daughter."

Peter Decker, friend of the evangelist, charged Mrs. Trotter with "insane jealousy." He said she showed her jealousy so plainly that some of the women members resigned from the mission.

Her manifestations of jealousy convinced him, said Decker, that she labored under hallucinations.

FREE - FOR - ALL ENDS POKER GAME

Abraham Rosenberg is a shoe dealer. He lives on Emerald street, South End. Samuel Brown is also a shoe dealer with a place of business on Eliot street. Sam invited Abe down to hisi shop "to look over some shoes."

Friend wife became suspicious. Gathering the clan of Rosenberg around her, including several in-laws, Mrs. R. led the detachment to Sam's shop.

A poker game was in full blast. "Fadder' 'Abe saw the approaching relatives and did a Steve Brodie under a bench. Angelo Ingegneir is a barber next door. He was just looking on. Son Meyer's fist smacked against his face. Four stitches repaired the damage later.

Sam stepped up, brave and undaunted. "What's the matter?" he asked.

"Oh, not much,' was Mayer's reply as his mighty left landed on Sam's chin. Benny Wolf, who runs a lunch room nearby, was the next victim. He was hitting on four cylinders for the door when Mayer, being a two-fisted gent, landed on his ear. In keeping with the spirit of the occasion, Benny went down.

By this time the excitment proved too much for the irate mother and she, like a woman, proceeded to faint.

Judge Murray listened to the whole tale in municipal court today.

"Did you see the trouble?" he asked father Abe.

"No, your honor, but I heard it," was the answer.

"Well, it seems to be a case of how far a wife can go to break up a poker game," returned the judge.

Mayer was fined $10 for hitting Angelo. The other cases were filed.

'BROKE BANK' BUT DIED POOR

Paris, Aug.1. — Charles Deville Wells, "the man who broke the bank of Monte Carlo," and hero of the celebrated song heard wherever the English language was spoken in the early nineties, died in Paris in such abject poverty that his death has passed unnoticed until now. He was eighty-one.

Wells, after a record run of luck at Monte Carlo, soon became a bankrupt. He had many other vicissitudes, including several terms in jails and penitentiaries in England and France, for obtaining money by false pretenses.

He used to blossom out with many get-rich-quick schemes. One of them was a system whereby he claimed any roulette wheel might be beaten by a player with a sufficient bankroll. Applicants for the system, however, generally were relieved of their bankrolls before reaching the roulette wheel.

HENRY USED PSYCHOLOGY TO SWELL "GREENE RIVER OF GOLD"

PAINTED PICTURES OF WEALTH

Ex-Soda Jerker Used Morgan as His Idol in Going After Easy Millions

Physically Henry Vincent Greene, the tutti-fruitti deck hand at the Roxbury soda fountain, mingled with flappers and their flippers, phosphate imbibers and folks with the sort of appetite that a kickless beverage will satisfy.

He parked his "dogs," as they refer to feet in some parts of our cultured city, down among the ice cream tubs and the salted ice and kept his trigger finger on the ice cream scoop when business came fast.

WAS ALWAYS DREAMING.

But mentally, the boy who later became "Prophet" of the miraculous Greene companies and shepherd of those who would grow rich via his magic stocks, was forever mingling with such folks as J. P. Morgan, John D., Marshall Field, John Wanamaker and others whose middle name is success.

What they had accomplished the boy with the plain name of Henry Greene believed he could do. What if he was pouring a lemon phosphate for a fussy old lady cackling for straws lest her store teeth pass off, or jerking a snappy soda for a newly shorn flapper? What of it?

In the fizz of that phosphate or the suds on that soda Henry Vincent Greene saw reflected the dream that he afterwards made come true when he leaped into State street and dazed the bankers with the dazzling corporations of his brain.

O'BRIEN'S STATEMENT.

"Any probe into the affairs of the Henry V. Greene Companies, defendants in a $14,000,000 suit filed by attorneys for the Boston Legal Aid Society for 60,000 investors, will be done by Attorney General J. Weston Allen's office and not by my office," said District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien today.

At the Attorney-General's office it was said Mr. Allen was "not in." None of his assistants were aware, they said, of an investigation of the Greene companies.

In the little black book, the "Book of Promises" with which Henry armed his salesmen when they buzzed into the vineyard, bees after honey, one finds such readable paragraphs as:

"The foundation of wealth is the first $100.00 well invested."—J. P. Morgan.

"I invested my first $100.00 in a new idea and made $10,000 out of it."—Marshall Field.

"One good investment is worth more than the savings of a lifetime."—E. H. Harriman.

"What to do with $10,000 is not much of a problem. Hundreds of experts stand ready to advise you. The real, genuine problem, of the crying kind, is what to do with TEN DOLLARS."—Dr. Frank Crane.

Henry most certainly agreed with the eminent Dr. Crane when he wrote his best seller, the "Book of Promises," now about to be read aloud in court when the famous $14,000,000 suit against the former soda jerker and his companies comes up for another hearing.

REAP THE HARVEST.

There was no doubt in "The Prophet's" mind that a lot of folks had $10 bills just wondering how to invest them so when Henry gave his disciples the "Prophetical" blessing and sent them into the fields to harvest the tollers he said: "Take anything from two tens up, boys. Twenty dollars is twenty dollars."

The disciples toiled in the vineyard and reaped the harvest as they read from Henry's "Book of Promises."

"One Hundred Dollars," was the title of one page they read aloud. In it you can gleam how "The Prophet" and his voluble handmaidens separated 60,000 folks from millions. Quite modestly Henry had the boys show the gullible how $100 had on several occasions been run up to $100,000 and even $400,000.

WAS PSYCHOLOGIST.

"What these men did," said the boys, the "Book of Promises" spread on their knees, "you can do. Just follow 'The Prophet,' he's the kitten's ear muffs when it comes to finance. Follow him and you'll have flunkies holding the ear of corn when you eat it off the cob."

There is an honest ring to ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS, when you accent it. It impresses the poor man. He often dreams what he'd like to have if $100 only had the buying power of thousands. Henry had that all doped out. When "The Prophet" jolted down items for his little black book as he sat on the cream tubs or polished the soda faucets he saw that the honest-ringing "hundred dollars" had a conspicuous place in his "Book of Promises."

As the suit against the former marshmallow dipper and his companies and associates is for $14,000,000 take a pencil and figure out how many HUNDRED DOLLARS Henry found ready for "investment."

The lawyer who organized the company and afterward became Governor of Massachusetts refused to take stock at par, 10 a share for his fee of $3000. Had he accepted the stock he would have received as his fee $60,000,000. Some of the company's workmen received stock as part pay. GREENE SHOWS HOW OTHER STOCKS SOARED

One page in his "Book of Promises" was headed $100.00." Greene had the salesmen of his stock show how $100 had on general occasions been run up to $100,000 and even $400,000. Fully 60,000 persons are declared to have bought from his salesmen.

WALSKA WILL BE IN MOURNING SIXTY DAYS

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 1.—Mme. Ganna Walska, the diva, who just received her divorce decree from Alexander Cochran, announced today that she would inaugurate the new custom of "divorce mourning." According to the French law there are exactly sixty days before she can embark on the matrimonial seas again; those days are to be spent in holy seclusion, away from the world and its vanities.

She will take only the quietest recreation—like some nun in an old convent garden looking out on the soul 'mich; the hours will be passed in deepest meditation, upon the sorrow and tribulations of a vexatious world.

To one of her most intimate friends she has confided, previous to going into her retreat:

"Divorces are solemn things—like marriage and death; they make humans think on a higher plane than the mere significance of the individual."

It is understood that madame has given up the plan to appear in Carlsbad simultaneously with Harold McCormick of Chicago.

TOTH'S SWIM IS AGAIN HELD UP BY GALE

Dover, England, Aug. 1 (By International News Service).—High wind today caused a second postponement of Charles Toth's attempt to swim the English Channel from England to France.

Toth abandoned the idea of starting today after waiting several hours for the wind to subside. He plans to start tomorrow, if weather conditions will permit.

"I am much encouraged to receive a cablegram from Mayor Curley of Boston," said the swimmer. "He expressed his best wishes for my success."

Sam Richards of Boston has arrived and will accompany Toth part of the way when the latter starts on his swim. Later Richardson hopes to make the channel swim himself.

HUNT GIRL TO SOLVE DEATH OF BABY

Deputy Sheriff Frank P. Toner and State Detective Fleming are searching Providence and Pawtucket today for the young woman whose dead baby was found in a trunk in a North Attleboro house when wreckers were tearing down the building.

Acting on admissions made by Miss Marion Corrigan of East street, North Attleboro, who with her father and an older sister for many years occupied the building where the child's body was found, Sheriff Toner left for Providence.

Deputy Sheriff Toner said Miss Corrigan's admissions, after a grilling of several hours, warrants her being held as an important witness for the State.

According to the police the Corrigan home at Mason avenue and Washington street was the scene of many gay parties, a number of the participants being young women from Providence and Pawtucket.

The body of the baby was placed in a trunk more than two years ago after a corset string had been tied about its neck. A charge of murder will be placed against the young Providence woman the police are seeking.

NEW FIGHT DUE OVER STEWART MILLIONS

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Riverhead, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The legal battle over the estate of the late John K. Stewart, millionaire Chicago speedometer manufacturer, will be resumed Monday.

Martin Taylor, former guardian of Mrs. Marian Stewart Honeyman, Jr., and Miss Jean Stewart, now dead, daughter of Stewart, will fight the order of Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau, which directs him and Leander H. La Chance, former guardians, to turn over all assets of the two daughters' estates to Mrs. Honeyman. La Chance is said to be president of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation, Chicago.

Robert S. Honeyman, Sr., Marian Honeyman's father-in-law, her present guardian, will defend the order.

Taylor's plea probably will be that the surrogate had no right to demand the turning over of the assets until he has signed a decree approving an accounting on the estate.

After Stewart's death in 1915, his wife died, leaving the two daughters to inherit his estate, valued at $7,000,000. John Stewart, aged ten, died in Chicago last October. Marian married Robert B. Honeyman, Jr.

EUROPE FACING ECONOMIC DISASTER, DECLARES E. A. FILENE

BOSTON MERCHANT WARNS OF CRASH IN AUSTRIA

By EDWARD A. FILENE,
Boston department store proprietor and director of the International Chamber of Commerce.

(Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.)

Paris, Aug. 1.—I believe the danger of a break down and a catastrophe in Europe is imminent.

The imminent danger point is Austria, especially Vienna. There money has fallen so low as to be now nearly valueless.

The people are clamoring for food, threatening the government if it does not restore subsidies. Shops and banks frequently are compelled to close.

The peril is real. A revolution may come it the masses, that is, the workmen, are not relieved of the fear that the money they earn today will not have sufficient purchasing power at the end of the week to buy their family food for the week following. This fear is not imaginary.

FACING BIG UPHEAVAL.

The crown which was once five to the dollar is now 40,000.

Hot heads are advising these workmen to go into the country surrounding Vienna to seize food from peasants who will not sell it for worthless money. Other radical leaders are urging the seizure of private property, especially "real" that is foreign—money—in banks or business houses.

But the Austrian people are not naturally revolutionists. So far they have refused to follow this kind of advice. But if the money they get for their work will not buy food, they will not allow their families to starve, even if violence should become necessary.

Any week may see momentous happenings in Vienna, the results of which will not be confined to Austria. Any radical uprising in Austria will have effect on Germany, which is itself unsettled. An Austrian revolution may be the last straw that will break the German camel's back.

SEES DANGER TO U. S.

This "foreign stuff" of the greatest importance to American business men and workmen. We shall eventually have millions out of work in the United States unless we can export our surpluses. We shall have the fiercest competition our country ever had, business will have to be done at a loss, wages will be reduced and men will be thrown out of employment. This has already happened in England.

If the present administration, especially men like Senator Lodge, had made it their business to see that European markets were kept open for our surplus products, prosperity would reign in the United States.

Instead, they have cast votes for those things which have made the European markets impossible for us on an adequate scale. The remedies are in the hands of the people at the coming elections.

"Sylpho-Nathol is important as soap" -said our grocer

"Mr. Baker has the nicest grocery store. It's so up to date and complete—everything you buy there is so reliable.

"I asked him whether he sold Sylpho-Nathol.

"Mr. Baker laughed, 'Yes, indeed, I do sell it—lots of it—to nearly all my customers. We use it ourselves, so I can vouch for it personally. Mrs. Baker says it's just as important as soap.'

"Sylpho-Nathol has been part of my grocery order ever since. I don't know how I ever got along without it. I use it just as regularly as I do soap—in the mop water because I know that it destroys the germs in floor cracks where soap and suds won't budge them.

"I use it in the scouring water for the garbage can and sprinkle around it every day. It keeps such places free from flies as well as odors. I pour it down the sink. It keeps drains and pipes from smelling. Of course, I use it when cleaning around the bathroom fixtures, and regularly as a flush for the toilet bowl."

Sylpho-Nathol is free from the objections which housekeepers have to ordinary disinfectants and deodorants.

Sylpho-Nathol is sure. Germs and odors disappear for good where it is used.

Sylpho-Nathol is safe. Though 4½ times stronger than carbolic acid, it is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scouring soap.

Sylpho-Nathol is easily prepared. A teaspoonful in a quart of warm water makes a clean-smelling, pearly-gray solution that's ready for immediate use.

Order Sylpho-Nathol today from your grocer, or druggist. He sells it in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c, and $1.25. If he hasn't it, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name, "Sylpho-Nathol."

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo "Use Mulsified"

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. It rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

MASS TROOPS IN ROME OVER STRIKE CALL

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Aug. 1.—The Italian government today converted Rome into an armed camp because of the general strike called in protest against Fascisti reprisals against Communists.

The headquarters of the postal and telegraph services, the Chamber of Deputies, the Senate, all the ministries and banks, were occupied by military contingents.

Other points were held by strong detachments of foot and mounted troops, armed with machine guns. A number of armored cars patrolled the streets.

Large forces of troops and police paraded through the city, concentrating their attention on the more radical quarters. The troops had orders to disband any gathering irrespective of party.

Special police and military services were established for the protection of the Vatican and the residences of the Cardinals and Papal diplomatic representatives.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—"Red Cloud," a full-blooded Indian using the name of John Kuhn, enjoys the reputation of being the best tuba player in the United States. He is a member of the Sioux tribe. He served five years with Royal Northwest Mounted Police after graduating from college, and his gun has eight notches. He then joined Soum's band and gained a reputation throughout the country for his playing, until today he is said to be the best of all them all.

PROTESTS SENDING OF MARINES TO WYOMING

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 1.—Governor Robert Carey, of Wyoming, has telegrapher President Harding protesting against sending of marines to Wyoming to eject alleged squatters from the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve. The Governor's message says:

"If any persons are in illegal possession of lands in this field, they can be removed by legal process through courts. Such procedure as is contemplated ignores the courts of the nation and establishes precedent whereby any Federal bureau or department may enforce its whims or mandates by military force rather than by legal action."

MISS FARRAR ISN'T TALKING ABOUT LOU

If Geraldine Farrar, the temperamental diva, and Lou Tellegen, her actor husband, are about to kiss and make up "Jerry" isn't telling the world about it.

From her suite in the Touraine, where Geraldine is vacationing, the prima donna is saying nothing. She made it known that she is not in Boston to be interviewed. In fact, she says she is here for a vacation from interviews, and the last thing in the world that she intends to do is to discuss marital troubles.

Rumor has it that Geraldine has been at Poland Springs and that Lou was there, too, and that the world and his wife need not be surprised if the temperamental pair had patched up their difficulties.

If that be true, "Jerry" is not yet ready to spread the joyful news.

GREEKS NOT GOING INTO CONSTANTINOPLE

London, Aug. 1.—The Greek foreign minister has given the allies positive assurance that the Greek army will not attempt to occupy Constantinople without their consent. This announcement was made in the House of Commons by Premier Lloyd George. The Premier added that the British minister to Athens had warned the Greek government that there would be serious consequences if the army moved on the Turk capital. For once Great Britain, France and Italy are able to agree on this post-war problem. While publicly accepting the Greek assurances, the British are sending the Third Squadron to join the thirty British warships now at Constantinople.

MORIARTY IS DEFIED BY MANNING

Voicing defiance of Councilman James T. Moriarty, John P. Manning, clerk of the Superior Criminal Court of Suffolk County, invited the City Council to investigate his office.

John P. Manning.

Moriarty openly charged Manning with using his office and spending money appropriated by the city for political purposes.

The Council passed an order calling for a public investigation of Manning's office. The order was passed after a stormy session, in which Manning and Moriarty clashed verbally.

Manning appeared before the council asking for the transfer of additional money for the hire of clerks, one for $900 and the other at $1,600.

MANNING DEFIES MORIARTY.

Councilor Moriarty took up the questioning of Mr. Manning and subjected him to cross-examination for a half hour. Question after question was hurled at Clerk Manning, until they drew from him the reply: "I defy you and ask that this board investigate my office."

Moriarty claimed that Manning was employing relatives and "matress voters" in his office, and that every day that Manning's son worked in the office of the clerk he received $10. This took place every day in the week, including Saturday, according to Moriarty.

Mr. Manning, following the attack by Moriarty, sent a letter to Mayor Curley demanding an immediate investigation.

"I welcome this so-called investigation," said Mr. Manning, and believe that it is political bluff." The attack, Mr. Manning thinks, was inspired by Thomas Fay, a former clerk, who was discharged for incompetency.

At the meeting the City Council on Monday, Mr. Manning said that Mr. Moriarty asked him several questions, "but didn't ask about a visit he made to my office this Spring with a certain man whom he wished to appoint as an assistant clerk immediately after the council had authorized such an extra appointment. I did not appoint his candidate."

"This is a pronounced plan to injure me in the eyes of the public on the eve of the primaries. My good name is worth more to me than anything else after my long record of service and I shall insist that any statements made about me or my conduct of my office shall be proven.

"I am investigating certain alleged statements now. There is a new statute which politicians and their aides will do well to keep in mind. It reads 'No person shall make or publish or cause to be made or published any false statements in relation to any candidate for nomination or election to public office which is designated or tends to defeat such candidate.'

"This statue became operative July 19 of this year, and carries a six months' sentence or a $1,000 fine. One statement which I understand has been made is that I have eighteen relatives among my twenty employes. The fact is that I have eighteen who are not relatives and two who are."

DAVIS REPORTS WEST HAS BUILDING BOOM

Building throughout the West is as extensive as it is in Boston, reports Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association, Boston Chamber of Commerce. Davis has just returned from a tour of the West, and reports that the steel executives of Pittsburgh are optimistic regarding the business situation of the country. The increased activities of the building trades are reflected in the increased orders for structural steel.

Olivia James Prominent Among Art Women, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

Miss Rebecca Smith.
Miss Olivia James.

SECOND on our list of art-devotees among Boston's younger set is Miss Olivia James, older daughter of the Edward H. James of Mt. Vernon street.

Yesterday I described Rebecca Smith, daughter of the well-known artist, Joseph Lindon Smith. Miss Smith is already noted for her talent as a portrait painter, while Miss James is interested in stage setting and costuming as well as sketching. And now I hear that she has taken up batik work.

Besides being distinctly talented, Olivia James is most attractive. She is of medium height, with soft, wavy blonde hair, very expressive blue-gray eyes and a lovely pink-and-white complexion. Her voice still bears the trace of a charming French accent, for the clever young Bostonian was brought up in France, receiving her schooling there.

Before and ever since Miss James made her debut two Winters ago, she has been wedded to her art. She is rated as one of the most gifted students at the Boston Art Museum School of Fine Arts, where quite a few members of Boston's younger set attend.

It was Olivia James who designed the scenery of some of the costumes for "Now and Then," the musical comedy presented last April by the Vincent Club. Her work won not a little praise for her. Only a short time ago, when she assisted as stage and costume designer for the three plays given in the Gloucester at the Play-House-on-the-Moors, her work aroused the same favorable comment.

Miss James is the god-child of her uncle, Grafton Cushing—her mother was formerly Miss Louisa Cushing—and it was at his home on Chestnut street that her presentation took place, as did that of her younger sister, Miss Mary James, who made her debut this Winter. Mary James, by the way, was included in my list of society's six "peppiest" young women.

Miss James, who had a studio of her own during the past season, I understand, is spending the Summer with her parents at Annisquam, on the North Shore.

Just a week from today, the North Shore will hear the first of Miss Virginia Wainwright's series of readings which she will give during August.

The first takes place on Tuesday, for which Mrs. B. Sumner Welles (Esther Slater) is opening her home in Manchester. The second will be held on August 13 at Bass Rocks, Gloucester, and the third on August 15 at Manchester Town Hall.

On these occasions Miss Wainwright, a member of the Sewing Circle, the Vincent Club and a number of other clubs, will give readings of humorous poems and short stories from classical and modern authors. Each Summer Miss Wainwright gives these affairs, which never fail to evoke the hearty patronage and support of the Shore's most prominent matrons.

I note that Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer has been elected to serve on the house committee of the Newburyport Country Club, taking the place of Mrs. Vincent Astor, who is abroad. Mrs. Thayer, whose Winter home is on Fairfield street, is one of the leading hostesses at Little Rhody's famous stamping-ground for the fashionable world. Both she and Mrs. Astor are members of the board of governors of the Newport Casino, that centre of the gaiety of Newport's social life.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird is among the large Boston contingent in the Berkshires. She is stopping at the Greylock Hotel in Williamstown.

Recently the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert S. Johnson of Boston gave a dinner at their Summer place in Williamstown in honor of Stephen Panaretoff, Bulgarian Ambassador at Washington, and Mme. Panaretoff. The latter have also been entertained during their stay in the Berkshires by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bulkley Hubbell at Brookside Farm, Williamstown.

GIRL TRAVELS FROM ITALY TO WED HERE

San Francisco, August 1.—Miss Vittorno Cirie came all the way from Genoa, Italy, to marry the sweetheart of her childhood days. The groom-to-be is Frank Brunnetto. The couple were childhood sweethearts and when Frank Brunnetto came to America to seek his fortune in the "land of the free," he promised to send for her when conditions made it possible. As a result of the promise, they will be married shortly and will then make their home in this country.

They have chosen the Golden West as their home. Christine Poggi of the Travelers' Aid Society, welcomed the girl to her new home. Miss Cirie does not speak English fluently, but has studied hard during the past few months, and with a little more practice, hopes to be a real American wife to the man who has chosen this country as a home.

FILIPINOS MUST WAIT YEARS, SAYS DENBY

By the Associated Press.

Manila, P. I., Aug. 1.—Japan is observing every detail of her obligations under the naval and four-power treaties entered into at Washington and a feeling of mutual confidence was succeeded the uncertainty which existed in American relations with Japan, according to a statement of Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby today, the first day of his visit here.

Secretary Denby said the United States was free under the Washington treaties to increase its air forces in the Philippines, a move that had been advocated by various naval experts, but that no plans to do so were being made.

"If I were in the Philippines," he said, "I would regard withdrawal from the United States as the greatest possible disaster at present. The islands are more peaceful and prosperous than most sections of the globe.

"Although independence is the ultimate ideal set up for the Philippines by America, I believe it to be many years away when the American flag will come down here. Under the four-power treaty plan protection by the United States would cease automatically if independence were granted to the islands."

BRIDE'S FATHER HAS GROOM ARRESTED

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Mildred De Poe Vinci, sixteen-year-old bride, who faced the loss of her newly acquired husband, will live happily "ever after," with her "hubby." A warrant had been sworn out by the bride's father when he learned that the young couple had eloped. The father swore that his daughter was only fourteen years old. The groom was arrested while a wedding party was in progress and the "irate" father was in another room, enjoying himself more extensively than any of the other guests. The warrant was withdrawn shortly after when Mrs. Vinci's father suddenly "discovered" she was sixteen years old.

SPIES AT WORK IN AMOSKEAG UNIONS

By CHARLES O. POWER

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 1.—The bells of Amoskeag have begun to ring again after being silent for twenty-four weeks. They are trying to tell the strikers to become workers again and trudge to the mills as of yore.

But, oh! how those strikers hate to get up in the morning. They have had over-time snoozing so long and so much of it that they have come to like it as the Latin likes his afternoon siesta.

Breakfast in bed has become such a fixed habit and fad with so many of the former workers of Amoskeag that it will take more than bells to wean them from it. They enjoy it not only as a luxury but also as a saving stunt, for by late rising they combine breakfast and the former noonday feast, thus saving the price of one meal a day besides reducing themselves into better physical shape.

VICIOUS RUMORS AFLOAT.

It is not to be inferred that the strikers actually have their morning fruit, cereal and chops or tender loin and toast and coffee arranged upon a bed tray, but rather that they are in bed nowadays long past the hour when they were wont to have breakfast, in the old days before the strike. This explanation seems silly to the casual reader, no doubt, but to those who know about the silly propaganda that is going the rounds, it is highly important.

As for instance, the vicious rumor that Strike Leader James Starr had given up the fight and fled the city for parts unknown. This rumor became so general, so widespread, that its circulation was no accident. Behind it was a malicious and deeply laid plan to cause a break in the ranks of the strikers. It was the means of making Mr. Starr a lot of trouble and inconvenience and upset his plans for Sunday completely.

He had arranged to be away from the city that day on urgent business for the strikers but he had to forego the trip in order to attend meetings in various halls and on the Common, thus, by his presence, refuting the stories that he had gone away from here.

BLAME THE POLICE.

The strike leaders have a pretty definite idea from whence and from whom the rumor came. They blame the police for starting it on its way, just as they blame the police for spreading reports that their commissaries were going out of business.

Mr. Starr says that from all the reports which come to him, he is impelled to the conclusion that the police department is doing the dirty propaganda work of the Amoskeag bosses. He does not blame all the police, but he does blame the higher officials and the well known trustees. The story, strike leaders claim, emanated from the Amoskeag employment office.

That the Amoskeag has spies in the inner circles of the strikers, if not in the inner councils, who report to Amoskeag officials and go-betweens, is no longer a matter of suspicion but of fact. The attack, through rumor, upon Mr. Starr proves it. Information relative to his going away was conveyed from someone on the inside, by a go-between, to those who distorted the facts into falsehoods and then gave them impetus.

Agent Straw says that the music of the bells was followed by the singing of 2,340 looms, an increase of 441 over the loom chorus of last week, and the presence of 500 applicants for work at the company's employment office, the largest number since the bells were struck dumb, nearly six months ago.

ONLY 712 SEEN TO ENTER.

Strike Leader Starr says this claim by Agent Straw leaves nothing to be desired in the way of taliwhacky that the mill boss is a worthy rival of old Doc Cook, of North Pole fame.

Reports from the pickets at the mill gates, the strike leader says, show that only 712 people entered the mills, and that count includes the superfluous as well as the unskilled help. He insists that there is no skilled help at all in any of the mills.

This is the way he puts it: "Even if it is true that the Amoskeag has 1,500 operatives at the mills, and we know it is not true, it means nothing to the strikers. Even though 5,000 people of the caliber of the workers now employed there return to the mills, it would not break the strike. The skilled help of the Amoskeag Co. has determined to continue the struggle irrespective of what anybody connected with the company may say. And, without the skilled operatives, the others are worthless."

STILL FOR ARBITRATION.

The press committee of the strikers requests prominence for the following statement:

"The strikers are still anxious and ready to meet with their former employers to try to bring about a cessation of hostilities on a fair and honorable basis. They have not changed one iota in this respect. They stand the same as when the original Davis plan was submitted. If the strike must go on we want the city of Manchester to place the blame where it belongs—on the Amoskeag."

Strike leaders said last night they are hopeful of good news from other strike centres in a few days.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Five-year-old Mary Baker was sold in a court here because her dad didn't have enough money to pay a debt for board and lodging that he had incurred. The child was purchased, through payment of the bill, by Mr. and Mrs. John Kenney of Rentville, Mich. Her uncle and aunt plan to take her to their home.

Coal Strike Costing Public $7,000,000 Each Week

Washington, Aug. 1.—The public is the only loser through the coal strike and is footing the bill to the tune of $7,000,000 a week, according to W. Lauck, consulting economist to the United Mine Workers of America and other labor unions.

Neither the striking miners nor the operators have suffered permanent loss, he declared today.

Immediate resumption of work by the strikers would soon replenish coal stocks to supply more than normal requirements, he stated.

NEW ENGLAND COAL TO COME BY WATER

Washington, Aug. 1.—Working plans under which government coal distribution will operate were completed at a conference of the President's coal committee with Henry B. Spencer, Federal coal distributor, the advisory committee of producing operators, and other government agencies.

Preliminary to this conference the operators' advisory committee was in conference earlier, allotting territory and forming district committees to function in the producing fields.

Coal for New York, New England and upper Atlantic seaboard territory will go by rail very largely over the Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western from the Virginias, with some from eastern Kentucky and Tennessee to Hampton Roads and there be loaded on to coastwise steamers for water shipment to upper Atlantic ports.

Deputies at Pennsylvania Mine Fired Upon

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 1.—Deputy sheriffs and guards at the mine of the Locust Hill Coal and Coke Company near Point Marion, Pa., in the Fayette strike region, fought with a crowd of men who tried to destroy the tipple early today. The shooting lasted more than an hour.

None of the guards or deputies were wounded, but searching parties were in the woods today looking for members of the assailing party, who might have been hit.

The Locust Hill mine has been working steadily since the strike began. It was not affected by the walkout, although other mines in the region are closed. Three men were killed in a fight at the mine several weeks ago.

LEWIS CALLS COAL STRIKE CONFERENCE

Philadelphia, Aug. 1 (By the Associated Press).—A joint wage conference of operators and miners of the Central Competitive bituminous fields, to be held in Cleveland next Monday, for the purpose of negotiating a basic agreement designed to terminate the present coal strike, was called today by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers.

President Lewis also summoned the general policy committee of the union to meet in Cleveland at the same time for the purpose of acting promptly upon developments as they may occur in the joint wage conference.

All men will remain on strike until an agreement or a definite understanding is reached.

LEWIS' STATEMENT.

The central competitive field includes Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. In connection with the call for the interstate conference, President Lewis gave out the following statement:

"In issuing an invitation to the coal operators, I am actuated by the highest considerations of public welfare and the impelling necessity for an early adjudication of the issues involved in the bituminous and anthracite coal fields.

"This strike, unparalleled in its magnitude, is now in its eighteenth week and constitutes an industrial convulsion which menaces the financial and social fabric of our nation. Aside from the tremendous personal sacrifices so bravely endured by the mine workers, the strike is exacting penalties from every citizen of our land and is clogging the channels of commerce.

"We are able to fight indefinitely, but much prefer the pursuits of peace to the ills of industrial warfare.

WOULD PAVE THE WAY.

"The making of a basic settlement in the central competitive field will permit of an immediate following settlement in all of the outlying bituminous coal districts and should pave the way for an immediate adjustment in the anthracite coal fields as well. Those who block the success of such a conference by refusal to participate should be made to bear full responsibility for the continuing situation."

The Mayors of six anthracite cities were scheduled to lay their plan for ending the suspension in the hard coal regions before the wage scale committee of the anthracite operators at a meeting here today. The plan provides for a commission of five men not affiliated with either the mine workers or operators, to investigate all questions involved in the suspension.

Operators Fail to Enthuse Over Invitation

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 1 (By International News Service).—"Indiana operators will not attend," declared Morton C. Gould, president of the Indiana Bituminous Operators Association, when told today of the invitation issued by John L. Lewis.

Hillsboro, Ill., Aug. 1 (By International News Service).—"I think it very doubtful that Illinois operators will attend the meeting called by Lewis," Rice Miller, president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association, said today.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 1.—"These invitations are just like the other invitations Lewis has been putting out for the last two or three months," said R. M. Gardiner, commissioner of the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association, today. "If you are conversant with our position in the past (stand pat), you can make a good guess as to our position in the future."

APPROVES PLAN FOR JOINT DEBATE

Approval of the joint debate among candidates for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, as expressed in the editorial columns of the Boston American, was received today from John Jackson Walsh, candidate for that office.

In a letter to the Boston American, Walsh says:

Editor Boston American:

I heartily commend the spirit of your leading editorial in this day's issue entitled "Let the Advocates of Whipple and Gaston Tell the Truth."

John J. Walsh.

The proposal for a joint debate among the candidates is the very thing I have been endeavoring to bring about. Under date of July 28 I addressed a letter of like tenor to Messrs. Gaston and Whipple, and to Professor Sharp.

Mr. Whipple has replied that there was merit in my suggestion, but that he did not know whether it would fit into the plan of campaign which had been laid out for him, but promised careful consideration. To Professor Sharp the proposition seemed quite agreeable, but he amended it by suggesting publicity by advertising instead of a hand. Mr. Gaston's office replied that he was out of town until Wednesday next.

GOOD WILL TO ALL.

Nothing could work better for a large primary vote, as you point out, than the presence of four earnest aspirants for nomination as United States Senator. It will also be very valuable for the public to be informed, as you put it, of the truth, and nothing but the truth of the public control bill. It has been used as a means of obtaining votes and befuddling the electorate with false hopes.

Put me down as one ready to debate on the relevant issues of the campaign with any or all of my opponents, bearing as I do, good-will towards all of them, and willing that the palm should be awarded to him who most deserves it in the judgment of the public.

Following is a copy of a letter requesting a joint debate, sent by Mr. Walsh to Messrs. Whipple, Sharp and Gaston:

However famous we may believe ourselves to be, it is unhappily true that 95 per cent. of the general public is not familiar with our faces. Since our campaign, apart from the vicious activities of a few henchmen, is entirely friendly, why can't we all appear at the Parkman Bandstand on the Common, each of us then presenting for an equal time his claims to the Democratic nomination?

SUGGESTS A BAND.

For purposes of diversion we might employ a band, each of us sharing in the expense of it. This certainly would prove entertaining and possibly instructive. It is very likely that such an attraction as four devoted servants of the public interest, seeking an opportunity for more intense service, would draw a very large audience.

I shall not give this to the press until I have received answers to the proposition. That, I trust, may be soon.

If this suggestion appeals to you, I should like to have your idea of a date. On the matter of a chairman for the meeting we can easily agree. The Mayor of Boston, who has a fine presence and excellent voice for large auditoriums, would be a very happy choice for chairman. I nominate him.

SMYRNA CELEBRATES DECREE OF AUTONOMY

Smyrna, Aug 1 (By the Associated Press).—Issuance of the proclamation decreeing autonomy for Smyrna was greeted by an enthusiastic demonstration in the government square, where several thousand persons cheered the Greek officials. A committee including Greeks, Turks, Armenians, Jews and Circassians, called upon the Greek High Commissioner with a formal expression of thanks. In responding he assured the Turks that their religious privileges would be respected under the new regime.

White's Annual August Choice-of-the-House Sale of Men's Suits

EDITORIAL:

If you've been reading the newspapers—if you have followed the making of the new tariff bill—you know there isn't much difference of opinion about men's clothing going to cost more

Some think that's all right. Others, again, think it isn't.

As a store, we are neutral in such matters. If things cost more at wholesale, they cost more at retail.

But the point is this—

Here is a sale—one of the established fixtures of the store, when a man can buy a new suit—or several—to see him through the fall, winter and spring—and save money. Why wouldn't it be good business to get your clothing problems settled now when you can do so at a very considerable saving—so that you can have enough time to worry about coal?

ANOTHER GIRL ARRESTED IN DRUG RAID IS NOW NEAR DEATH

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS PARTY

Chum of Late "Queen of the Forty Thieves" Seriously Ill of Dope in Hospital

Tragedy is following in the wake of the drug raid in West Canton street, in which Federal and city officers arrested three women and two men.

Alice Reynolds is dead at City Hospital. Morphine, responsible for her activities as "Queen of the Forty Thieves," the cause of her police record and her last arrest, was also responsible for her death.

Lillian Reynolds, sister of Alice, is a prisoner at Charles street jail, unable to raise bail.

William J. Cronin, a guard at Deer Island at the time of his arrest, has been suspended. He and John F. Reynolds, brother of the girls, are at liberty under heavy bail.

Officials at Charles street jail today denied rumors that Lillian Reynolds is going blind. Other than suffering the pangs of those deprived of accustomed large doses of drugs, she is perfect physically, they said.

DOPE VICTIMS ROB BACK BAY DRUG STORE

Hundreds of dollars' worth of drugs and liquors were stolen today from J. W. Vogel's drug store, Kilmarnock street, Back Bay.

Drug addicts, unable to secure supplies of cocaine and morphine through the usual channels, are thought to be responsible.

The thieves gained entrance through a back window. They made their way through the cellar, finding a door to the store. They rifled the drug cabinet, liquor chest and cash drawer.

Voters Passing on Issues of All Varieties

Voters in five States went to polls today to decide primary contests that are expected to afford the most illuminating cross-country insight into the political temper of the country since the avalanche of 1920.

Almost every kind of a fight and every kind of an issue is bound up in some way in today's contests in Missouri, Kansas, West Virginia, Oklahoma and Virginia.

In Missouri it is Wilsonism, the League of Nations all over again; in Oklahoma it is the Ku Klux Klan; in Kansas it is the industrial court; in West Virginia it is a partisan battle between the Republicans, and a "woman fight" among the Democrats. Only in Virginia is there a semblance of quietude.

REED SEEKING O. K. TODAY AS LEAGUE FOE

(By International News Service)

St. Louis, Aug. 1.—Sentiment of Missouri democracy as regards the national policies of its party was voiced in the State-wide primary held today.

The League of Nations issue was before the voters. The stand of United States Senator James A. Reed in championing the fight against Woodrow Wilson and alignment with other nations of the world in an association aimed to preserve international peace, was to be approved or repudiated.

Reed stood before his party in this State today asking the people to renominate him. The fiery Senator was opposed by Breckenridge R. Long of St. Louis, who fought Reed and the policies he has supported in the Senate.

Long in his campaign reviewed the League of Nations issue which has been sidetracked during the past two years and charged Reed with being "unfaithful" to the Democratic party.

Edward A. Glenn, campaign manager, predicted Reed would sweep the State by 100,000 plurality.

Women voted for the first time in State-wide primaries.

BANKER RYAN TO ASSIST HIS BANKRUPT SON

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Aug. 1.—Thomas Fortune Ryan, who, through all the comet-like rise of his son' Allan to a multi-millionaire and a power in Wall street, preserved his bitter enmity toward him because of the young man's hasty marriage after his mother's death, today was reported to have come to his son's aid in the latter's hour of need.

A bankrupt for $4,000,000 unsecured claims, his proud position as one of the most spectacular manipulators in Wall Street, at least temporarily gone, Allan A. Ryan may be kept at the head of the Stutz Motor Company through the help of his father.

The sale at public auction of 134,414 shares of Stutz stock tomorrow has been ordered by the court, the stock representing collateral held by banks for loans to young Ryan who made a clean-up in the Stutz corner and whose bankruptcy is believed to be the efforts to "get" him for that transaction.

It is now learned that the banks themselves will buy in the stock, presumably at the instigation of T. F. Ryan, who is a director in the Guaranty Trust Company, one of the largest creditors.

40 Pilgrims on Way to Lourdes Shrine Killed in Wreck

Paris, Aug. 1 (By Associated Press).—Forty persons were killed and fifty others injured in a collision between two trains of pilgrims to the Grotto of Lourdes, one of the world's most famous shrines, early today. The collision occurred near Villecomtal.

The pilgrims were all from the region of Moulins, in the Department of Allier.

KINNEY IN RACE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

William S. Kinney today announced his candidacy for the office of District Attorney of Suffolk County. Mr. Kinney was formerly assistant district attorney under Joseph C. Pelletier. He seeks the nomination on the Republican ticket. He is chairman of the Ward 7 Republican committee and is a former member of the House of Representatives from that ward.

TO SEIZE 12 IN $5,000,000 RUM PLOT

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 1. — Deputy United States marshals today will begin rounding up twelve men for whom Federal warrants were issued yesterday charging them with having bribed and conspired to defraud the government in a plot of gigantic and international proportions with agents of the government declare involves $5,000,000 worth of whiskey.

Among the twelve are Matthew Griffin, formerly head of the United States secret service in this city, and Andrew Hamilton, who until recently was a police lieutenant.

The alleged fraud centres around action that took place more than a year ago when it is alleged water was substituted for alcohol in 100 barrels of liquor awaiting shipment to Greece.

A watchman at the warehouse where the alcohol was stored is said to have confessed to having received $1,100 for keeping quiet while the substitution was being made.

Griffin and Hamilton characterized the charges as "bunk."

LILLIAN REYNOLDS, "DOPE QUEEN," ON WAY TO JAIL

Both of these women were arrested in a drug raid in West Canton street. Alice Reynolds, sister of Lillian, also seized during the raid, died of morphine poisoning yesterday at the City Hospital. Lillian was unable to raise bail and is shown here under the escort of police Inspectors on the way to Charles Street Jail. Above, Bertha Dunham, who is near death as the result of her addiction to the drug.

'BLACK HAND' LETTER READ AT TRIAL

Luigi Di Padova made no demonstration today in the Superior Criminal Court where and six other prisoners are on trial for the murder of Michael Scarpone. The approaches to the court room were guarded by officers and others surrounded the cage in which were DiPadova and two others.

Mrs. Maria Mascatti of Tileston street, wife of Antonio Mascatti, a defendant, who it is reported may be a witness for the Commonwealth, testified that shortly before last Christmas Joseph Simboli, Guiseppe Anzardo, Luigi Di Padova and Francesco Toscano came to her house. Simboli demanded of Mascatti that he write a letter to Scarbone. Mascatti demurred, whereupon Simboli drew a revolver and said: "Write that letter or I will kill you."

Mrs. Mascatti said she began to cry and told her husband to write the letter, saying, "we can leave Boston." Anzardo also threatened Mascatti if the latter did not write the letter. Mascatti wrote the letter and later Mascatti wrote a second letter at the demand of the four men.

Mrs. Mascatti said that at 7 a. m., the day Scrabone was killed, she saw Padova loading a revolver. At 9 o'clock, she said, Simbole came to the house and said: "Don't say anything about the murder we committed on Unity street, or we will kill you.

The man then took the gun from its hiding place and "broke" it. Three cartridges fell out. They were placed in the kitchen closet by Mrs. Mascatti. Today she identified them in court.

Assistant District Attorney Maurice Caro succeeded in having a letter written in Italian and translated into English read to the jury. The letter contained these sentences:

"Dear Scarpone—This is the third letter that we are writing to you and therefore if you don't come now you can be sure that you won't live through another week. You will be slaughtered like a pig.

"Dear Scarpone, don't think the Black Hand has any four of the police. If the Black Hand should fear the police then the world would come to an end. Do as you should do for if they should arrest us they can only take one and he will come out in two hours. But if that should happen, you can rest assured that you will be cut up in small pieces like sausage together with all your descendants here and in Italy."

"ALWAYS READY" TO BAN ITALIAN STRIKE

Rome, Aug. 1 (By the Associated Press).—The "Always Ready," fascisti organization to the Fascisti, has ordered the mobilization of its 1,000,000 legionaries to oppose the general strike called for today. The strike is in protest against reprisals of the Fascisti against the Socialists at Ravenna. The "Always Ready" legionaries are headed by Deputy Paolucci, decorated with the American Distinguished Service Medal for torpedoing and sinking an Austrian dreadnought in Pola harbor.

BRITAIN CALLS ON ALLIES FOR PAYMENTS

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 1.—Great Britain today dispatched notes to her allied debtors, announcing the British government is willing to accept reduced reparations from Germany, but cannot cancel war debts owing to Great Britain while the United States is asking for payment of the money owed to her by Britain.

France Tightens Money Pressure

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 1.—France will impose penalties of an economic and financial character on Germany because of her refusal to continue payments on the debts contracted by her nationals with Allied nationals before the war, it was said in official circles today. The time limit set by France will expire Monday.

It was stated no military action was contemplated. The view was expressed that payments to German nationals by French citizens in connection with business dealings arranged before the war will be stopped in view of Germany's action.

France will probably take steps against Germany regardless of what the other Allies decide regarding similar payments due them by Germany.

Austria Seeks U. S. Aid in $75,000,000 Loan

Paris, Aug. 1 (By the Associated Press).—Austria will request the Allied powers to guarantee a $75,000,000 international loan, according to Dr. Schuller, under secretary for foreign affairs in the Austrian government, who has come to Paris.

Buries Old Love

MRS. JANE DEVINE.

San Francisco, August 1.—When Mrs. Jane Devine found that her mail-carrier husband lovet another woman, she allowed the new love the opportunity to bring about a divorce by paying the lawyer's bills. This was done, and until the decree is made absolute, Mrs. Devine receives $85 monthly from her husband as alimony.

LODGE ASSERTS TARIFF WILL BE RUSHED

Washington, Aug. 1.—After approval without change of imposts proposed by the finance committee majority on blankets, wearing apparel and floor coverings, the Senate has completed consideration of the wool schedule.

The bill, when completed, will be passed on as soon as possible, according to Senator Lodge. The Senator stressed the fact that it would not be sidetracked under any conditions.

With completion of the wool schedule the silk schedule was taken up. After this will come the schedules dealing with paper, books and sundries; hides and laces, the free list and administration provisions with the flexible tariff plan proposed by President Harding.

When the Senate winds up these it must go back over the entire bill, paragraph by paragraph. There was still divided opinion today as to when a final vote on the measure could be had. Senator Lodge said:

"This bill is going to be passed by the Senate and that at the first opportunity. We are going to stick to it and pass it as soon as we can get a vote. Reports that it might be laid aside or allowed to fail are absolutely without foundation. The bill will be passed and put on the statute books as soon as possible."

BOYS SEE U. S. ARMY GOING FAST CLIP

Camp Devens, Aug. 1.—Eight hundred boys, members of the Citizens' Military Training camp which opened today, were equipped in ten minutes with uniforms and two hundred men were given physical exabinations in one hour.

The system for the equipment and examination of these young men worked to perfection, according to Colonel M. G. Spinks, assistant chief of staff of the First Corps Area, who was looking after the interests of the unit.

It is expected that 3,500 will land here tonight from all over New England.

Story by Perley Poore Sheehan.
Scenario by Waldemar Young.
Directed by Tom Forman

WE AREN'T often at a loss to know who to blame for a picture when it's pretty bad, but "If You Believe It, It's So," headlining at the State, keeps you guessing. First, it seems to be poor judgment on the part of Tom Forman, the director, then the blame is transferred to the scenarist, Waldemar Young, and finally, where it really belongs, to Perley Poore Sheehan. It seems inconceivable that Paramount could have seen any possibilities in the original story. Even Tommy Meighan fails to make much of it, though he does a great deal to help it out.

The producers evidently, too evidently, tried to see if a second "Miracle Man" couldn't do as well as the first did. In fact, they have cast Joseph Dowling, who played the title role in "The Miracle Man," as Ezra Wood, who querulously calls the crook in New York that he should go out into the country, "where the air is sweet and pure." The crook, Meighan, follows the advice, goes West and reforms. It is very conventional stuff.

"TRIP THROUGH STUDIO."

AS AN ADDED attraction, they are showing a bit of self-exploitation from the Paramount studios, called "A Trip Through Paramountown," which shows all the stars as well as their directors and scenarists at work and play in and about the studio in Hollywood. The idea is by no means new, but it is always interesting.

"THE REAL ADVENTURE."

FLORENCE VIDOR stars in the other picture at the State this week, "The Real Adventure," which has been made from a story by Henry Kitchell Webster. This, too, is cut and dried, but holds the interest in spite of that handicap. It is a story of the wife who wants to prove to her husband that she is a partner and not a luxury. At the end of the fifth reel, she has proved it and has gone back to the occupation of being a luxury, throwing over her career and thereby proving nothing.

"ANOTHER FILM FOR "NAZ"

SPECULATING on the plans of a movie star is the best, I believe, form of publicity. "Keep 'em guessing and you'll keep 'em talking," seems to be the slogan. It is proving successful as far as Mme. Nazimova is concerned. Now they say she's going on the stage and now they say she isn't.

She announces and she ought to know—that she will make another picture; that she has the story and many of the production details worked out. On the other hand, it is said that Charles Bryant, her husband and business manager, has bought the rights to a stage play and that plans are under way to go ahead with the piece. At any rate, the newest Nazimova feature, "Salome," is said to be one of the most gracious and fantastic films yet made and to be unique.

"PURPLE HIGHWAY" FINISHED.

MADGE KENNEDY has finished work on her first production for Kenna Harris and is spending her time on plans for a second feature and rehearsals for a stage play under the John Golden banner. The film will be "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," and the stage piece will be "Spite Corner."

"The Purple Highway," which she has just finished, has been retitled from the comedy by Hale Hamilton and Luther Reed, "Dear Me," which was seen here last season at the Hollis Street Theatre. Her supporting cast includes Monte Blue, Dore Davidson, Pedro de Cordoba and Vincent Coleman.

COSMOPOLITAN COMPANY WEST

FRANK BORZAGE has reached the West coast with his company of players and is all set for the filming of Peter B. Kyne's "Pride of Palomar." Forrest Stanley will have the lead in this feature, which has been adapted to the screen by George Carpenter.

Borzage is taking his company out on "location" for nearly a month's stay, while they film the outdoor scenes.

First—in New York

At Columbus Circle, New York, the busiest motor traffic center in the world, 544 motorists, taken at random, were asked recently which gasoline they preferred. The count, duly sworn to by the investigators, showed that the big majority preferred and used Socony. And all through New York State and New England Socony stands out as the popular choice.

Why Socony is the most popular gasoline

NOTE—"Boiling-point" is a common term in the gasoline testing laboratory. Most liquids boil (vaporize) at one uniform temperature. In the case of water this temperature, or boiling-point, is 212° F. However, every gasoline has many boiling points—a whole series or range of them in fact. It is this range of boiling points AND the proportion of each group of them (low, medium and high) that really determine the quality of a gasoline—its volatility, power and mileage-economy.

WHAT the great majority of motorists want in a gasoline is all-round dependability. And that is what Socony has given for over ten years and what it offers today. That is why so many thousands of motorists use Socony and nothing else, and why so many who decided to "change gasoline for a while" eventually came back to it.

All gasolines are not alike. The refiner knows this. So does the petroleum chemist and the expert automobile mechanic. And here is the secret of Socony dependability, the reason why Socony is always easy starting, always high powered and always economical wherever you buy it: it always has the correct range of boiling points and in the right proportion. (See diagram and Note.)

You can be sure of getting the most that any gasoline can give you by using Socony all the time. There must be some good reason why the majority of motorists in New England and New York State prefer it.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

There is'nt any sign at present that it is going to cost less to live.

• • •

Prices lately have been rising in every leading country, including the United States, Britain, France and Germany.

• • •

Prices in this country reached their peak during the first half of 1920. It then cost fully twice as much to live as it did before the war.

A decline next set in and continued without interruption until the middle of last year. The cost of living was then about one-third higher than in pre-war days.

• • •

While the leading compilations, such as Bradstreet's and the Labor Department's, do not all cover the same ground and, therefore, show differences in their final figures of living costs, they all report a rising tendency in prices during the last year.

• • •

There was a distinct advance during June. The reporting agencies all record advances ranging between 1 and 2 per cent.

The Department of Labor figures that it costs exactly half as much again to live today as it did in 1913. Dun's estimates the rise at 60 per cent., Bradstreet's at 55 per cent.

• • •

In Germany, prices, as measured by marks, are running wild. Wholesale prices soared 17 per cent. in June alone, due almost solely to the disproportionate expansion in paper currency.

• • •

France, which has got her currency under control, reports an average wholesale price advance of 8½ per cent. during June, while France's retail prices have been kept at a level more favorable to buyers.

The rise in England last month was less than one per cent. Wage readjustments there have been rather drastic, and the business recovery has not yet been pronounced enough to stimulate prices substantially.

• • •

What most people here are chiefly interested in, however, is how the cost of living is likely to move in future.

• • •

Opinions differ very sharply. Some confidently proclaim that prices inevitably will move lower and lower for years until we get back to or even below pre-war costs. others contend that the cost of living will continue on the upgrade for quite some time.

• • •

I do not believe that the net rise or fall during the next six months will be very great one way or the other.

From present indications, the advances may outweigh the declines but only to a very moderate extent.

• • •

Rents, which are very important, are certainly headed downwards.

Coal should also become distinctly cheaper.

LOWELL BONDS FOR BOSTON BANKERS

Lowell has sold an issue of various bonds aggregating $52,500, dated August 1, 1922, with maturities in each of years 1923 to 1932, inclusive, to W. H. Collins & Sons at 101.347, bidding on a rate of 4¼ per cent. Other bidders were: F. S. Moseley & Co., 101.32; Estabrook & Co., 100.96; R. L. Day & Co., 100.59, and Old Colony Trust Co., at 100.26. All bids were on basis of 4¼ per cent. interest rate.

STUDEBAKER AT LOWEST LATE IN SESSION

Profit-taking brought a setback in New York trading after rails had resumed their upward swing in the face of renewal money at 4 per cent. Studebaker sold at its lowest in the late session, off 2¾ at 129¾.

Chandler was off 3¾ at 88¾. Many issues made their lowest in the last hour. Motors were weakened by the price cuts announced by the trade.

Baltimore & Ohio sagged 1¾ at 56¾; Kelly-Springfield Tires, 2 at 43¾; U. S. Steel, 1¼ at par; Union Pacific, 1¼ at 142¾; U. S. Rubber, 1 at 57½; American Car & Foundry, 1 at 168.

Pennsylvania was up ½ at 47⅝, selling ¾ ex-dividend. With the dividend added, this would have been a new high for 1922.

Norfolk & Western was at a 1922 high, up ¼ at 115, as were St. Paul issues, the preferred at 45¾ and common at 19¾.

New year's highs were also set by International Paper, at 83¼, up ¾, and Mallinson, at 93½, up 1¾.

Davison Chemical was up 2¼ at 49¾; Crucible, 1¾ at 83½; Julius Kayser, 2 at 47½, and United Drug a point at 81¾.

Hudson Motor sold at a new low since listing, off 1¼ at 19⅝.

WINCHELL CHAIRMAN FOR REMINGTON

P. L. Winchell, president of the Remington Typewriter Company, has been elected chairman of the board, succeeding F. M. Kondolf, who resigned to take a post with another corporation. Mr. Winchell will continue as president. Elisha Walker, president of Blair & Company, was elected to Mr. Kondolf's place as director and executive committee member.

WILLYS-OVERLAND CLAIMS SETTLED

Agreement is reported settling for $750,000 claims aggregating $5,000,000 against Willys-Overland Corporation held by Willys Corporation. Three equal payments are to be made in ten, eleven and twelve months, carrying 5½ per cent. interest. Receivers for Willys Corporation will probably seek court approval of agreement shortly.

FINANCING PLANNED BY GRAY & DAVIS

Directors of Gray & Davis have completed financing program whereby $1,800,000 cash will be raised through sale of securities, thus liquidating all but $700,000 of current liabilities and placing the company in a strong financial position, even a ratio of quick assets to liabilities of better than three to 1.

COTTO CROP NOW 70.8 P. C. OF NORMAL

This year's cotton crop was placed at 11,449,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight in the second forecast of the season just announced by the Department of Agriculture, basing its estimate on the condition of the crop July 25, which was 70.8 per cent. of a normal.

STATE ST. NOTES

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS — "A strong market should rule today with prospects of a speculative celebration in case today's conference on the railroad situation terminates the strike."

R. L. PARKINSON has been appointed treasurer and is to be elected a director of the Booth Fisheries Company to take effect August 15.

CAMBRIDGE will receive proposals until noon, August 2, for discount of a temporary revenue loan of $300,000, dated August 4, 1922, and maturing October 10, 1922.

PRESIDENT DODGE of International Paper Co. looks for higher prices for newsprint. He leaves shortly for Europe to look over the paper situation abroad.

TIRE PRICES cutting continues and the trade is likely to remain unsettled for some time, making the trend of these stocks downward.

EQUIPMENTS continue in favor for further rises, despite recent record and year's highs.

CUBA CANE SUGAR is expected to earn its preferred dividend next season, unless there is a slump in sugar prices, and none is now in sight.

ISLE ROYALE is expected to order a dividend shortly on its 150,000 shares. Recent copper dividends are pronounced due to the bank accounts rather than earnings.

FROM ITS ownership in Ahmeek and Osceola, Calumet & Hecla gets $141,728 as its share of these companies' dividends. This is nearly 80 per cent. of the $200,000 which Calumet & Hecla will distribute to its own shareholders.

GRAY & DAVIS, Cambridge concern, stock has risen from 14½ low last week to 18½, on better business showing.

EASTERN MASSACHUSETTS Street Railway issues appear to slight, unconcerning popularity in Boston, judging by the many new highs they have made since listing without sign of reactionary tendencies.

CUTTING OF OIL prices is generally believed to be over, at least for the time being; if this is true, oil issues should rally and they will have ample margin for profits in most cases.

EASTERN STEAMSHIP shows a surplus of $50,673 for June against a deficit of $82,822 for the corresponding month last year, justifying the new highs made for this issue.

AMERICAN WOOLEN'S further price cut on goods came as a surprise. The feeling is that they must go higher.

NEW BOSTON incorporations include Boston Market Terminal Co., capital $200,000; and Kane Furniture Co., Boston, $200,000.

The preferred C eased ½ to 51 and D ruled steady at 71. Maine Central figured in a two-point leap to 42 later selling for 42 and 41¾.

Michigan Copper was posted to sell dollar assessment paid, but the only favorable market on this basis was 2 bid, offered at 3 during the morning session. This contrasted with previous sale price of 1¾, assessment unpaid. Later there was a sale at 2¾, assessment paid.

Seneca Copper.

Will you kindly give me some information about Seneca Copper? Any information will be gratefully received.—M. B., New Bedford.

Answer—Seneca Copper has suffered from the stock market manipulations laid to some of its former officials who have been removed from the directorate. The stock has now found a natural level around 15 per share. Steady progress is being made in getting the mine ready for regular production.

Its mine is opened up by a modern 3-compartment steel shaft, down to a depth of 1,200 feet, and a new drainage lode has been opened on seven levels with the eighth in process of sinking. Mill capacity now contains 500,000 5 per cent. bonds, and 325,000 shares of stock. The company has sufficient working capital for some months ahead but will, of course, need additional cash before it is brought to commercial production.

The company owns and operates the entire Bell Telephone business in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina. Its exchanges are in operation in practically every city and town in that territory, serving a population of 3,000,000. It has large real estate holdings and rights of way over private lands. For first half, earned on outstanding issues of $500 and $1,000. Interest January and July.

Treasury Men See Prosperity As Strikes End

Treasury officials predict burst of prosperity marking beginning of many progress back to normalcy will follow settlement of coal and rail strikes.

Tide had already turned when strikes were called and it was running so strong that there has been no appreciable effect as yet on business as a whole.

Wall Street Notes

THOMSON & McKINNON—"This is a good time to devote all attention to the standard issues, including all of the rails, which offer some fine speculative opportunities."

J. S. BACHE & CO.—"If the optimistic viewpoint we get from Washington is correct and the strike is settled this week we may run into a very strong railroad market."

ON A TURNOVER of 33,000 Monday "Prince income 6s, 1940 made a new high at 73, compared with previous high of 71¾ reached in April. Even at the present price return to investor on stock yield basis is 8.22 per cent.

HIGHER CALL money rates came as a surprise, with the well known tendency of money to accumulate in New York and unjustified by any increase in commercial demand.

COLORADO FUEL & IRON president, Jas. F. Welborn, sees curtailment ahead, owing to dearth of orders for heavy rails.

TRANSCONTINENTAL OIL CO. has brought in No. 2 lanewell in Stephens County, Texas, for 850 barrels.

BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT earnings for the year ended June 30 are equivalent to about 4.2 per cent. on $74,000,000 stock.

STANDARD OIL of New Jersey is now transacting about 80 per cent. of its business with foreign countries.

STUDEBAKER net profits for first six months of 1922 were $11,186,649, equivalent to 18.01 per share on common.

GULF OIL is reported planning change in capitalization and reduction of par from $100 to $25 with declaration of stock dividend. This is in connection with impending merger with Standard Oil of Indiana.

TEXAS COMPANY is considered by many as selling more below its real value than any other of the established oil companies.

GENERAL ASPHALT'S plans for greater profits are said to be centred largely around the problem of marketing its Venezuelan oil.

GEORGE COHAN SAYS HE WILL RETIRE FROM STAGE IN 1924

SEES RUIN IF ACTORS RUN SHOWS

"Yankee Doodle Kid" Declares Business Men Are Needed to Operate Theatres

Opening telegrams with one hand, folding opened telegrams with the other, directing a rehearsal of "Pretty Nellie Kelly," and giving instructions regarding a new golf play he is producing, still left time and opportunity for George M Cohan to don the mantle of a prophet and speak of cabbages and kings at the Tremont Theatre.

"The Yankee Doodle days of the American theatre have passed into the American theatre have passed into the future and have become rampant on its American soil," he declared between giving stage directions. He delivered a couple of knockout blows to the Actors' Equity as a business man. And as a boost he endorsed Augustus Thomas as the white hope in the predicted final between producers and actors.

PLANS TO RETIRE IN 1924.

"I think it will be a good theatrical season, but one in which only real entertainment will survive," he declared by way of overture, as he hurried Julian Mitchell make the necessary cabort across the footlights.

"I am going to be in the business three or four years, then I have said I'm going to quit. I left England because I couldn't get a theatre to produce my plays. And I wouldn't like a repetition of that here.

"I believe that there is room for a few more theatres in New York, but it is possible to overcrowd managers in Boston and other cities. It will come, but at present there are too many houses and not enough attractions.

"The average actor is lazy. He wants to make $100 a week and work only two days. The few that do succeed are here on the contract.

"It takes a business man to run a theatre or a production. I am opposed to the actors' claims entirely. I don't believe that the Producing Managers' Association is afraid of either the actors' or the I. A. T. A. E. but I have hopes that when he begins to function Augustus Thomas will be able straighten things out.

"I pin my faith to Gus Thomas. I think he is the most capable, and the biggest man connected with the American theatre today. I think he will bring about a higher type of entertainment—although I don't see how anybody can improve on what we are doing at present. The managers attest that nothing will pay old things the way they did in the years. None but good shows are being produced, because no one can afford to produce anything else.

"By the way I have a brand new play by Thomas which I will produce before November. The song of the dragon is the name of it and is from a Boston Post short story of the same name.

"I am putting on two new comedies right away. One of them 'The Little White Lady' is a golf story. After the two comedies I will put on a revue. Broadway now-a-days revues don't review anything. They should be termed 'entertainments.' They are sort of glorified vaudeville. But we do them much better here in America than anywhere else.

"Have you any scandals or any pronouncements in your troupe, Mr Cohan?

"I have not. Furthermore I don't expect any. That may be fine for Mr. Ziegfeld, but I would much prefer people who flock to Mr. Ziegfeld's shows don't like mine. The people on the stage wear too many clothes.

"And so details and rumors are both barred in all my contracts."

NANTASKET BEACH Steamboat Co. officials report this week a notable increase in the number of visitors to Nantasket. The popularity of this beach, long known as one of the most attractive resorts on New England, is evidenced by the big week by week, and the Nantasket steamers are called upon to carry larger and larger crowds. Because of the foresight of the steamship company officials in providing seven large vessels for the line the growing crowds can be handled in perfect comfort to all passengers and uninterrupted schedules may be maintained at all times.

PLYMOUTH TRIPS—The Plymouth steamship, South Shore, known as one of the most palatial summer excursion vessels on the Atlantic coast, continues to prove one of the greatest of all Boston-to-Plymouth trips. This season the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, owners of the vessel, have added much to make the boat and its trip attractive. There is a large and excellent orchestra conducted by Morton Young; radio concerts received through an amplifying set, lobster and steak dinners served at the reasonable charge of $1.50 per plate, and many other comforts and conveniences.

"LITTLE NELLIE KELLY" BOUND TO BE A HIT

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Judging by the length of the per[formance] last night, "Little Nellie Kelly" ought to be called the Nellie Kelly Opera. It was a lot going when the curtain had to descend at eleven o'clock. And it is by far the most elaborate production George M Cohan has ever made of one of his own musical comedies. It is also the best one he has written for a long time, and the one that will probably be the most successful.

Little Nellie Kelly is the logical successor of "Mary," and "Tillie's Nightmare." Like the latter piece it is a comedy with music, and not a musical comedy with a story. Like "Mary" it is a story of Irish life in America, and has been written for the same star. But it is far more pretentious and superior than either of its predecessors. Instead of being a series of more or less disconnected scenes, with a song or dance between each one, it has a story that moves from beginning to end, and carries the interest of the audience right along. It is a story that is full of human interest, and is told in a most entertaining manner. It has a number of strong dramatic situations, and a lot of genuine comedy. It is a play that will appeal to the heart as well as to the funny bone.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—"The Half Breed," a First National production starring Richard Dix, is the Olympia screen feature. Adapted from the famous stage hit, it has been given a production to be adequate to the screen. The picture presents Dix in a new role and one that should add greatly to his popularity. The story tells of a half breed who is driven from his people by the white settlers. Dix is seen in the role of several years.

BOSTON THEATRE—Conway Tearle in "The Referee," at the Boston Theatre. The play is one of the prize plays from the Belasco and Ann Nichols studios and was written by Jack Lait. Tearle is seen as a crook who turns detective and gets the girl. Others in the cast are Lucille Lee Stewart, Jack Boyle and Jess Dandy. The play is said to be a corker and is staged in a most elaborate manner.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Phil Ott's company in two new musical shows forms the offering in the Norumbega Park theatre this week. Yesterday these players gave two excellent performances of "Tango Springs," a medley of songs and nonsence, which was well received and which will hold the stage until Thursday, when a comedy called "The Name of Kelly" which has a Chinese setting is presented. In which Mr. Ott will display his natural talents as a stage buffoon. Also will be presented. Many specialties are included in each performance and a contest is pending to have Marie Lunette, whose aerial slide has been a strong attraction this year, make a longer slide from a tower already erected on the roof of the theatre down across the lagoon to the pier, the trees that border the park and out across the lagoon.

GORDON'S STRAND—From the merry-making and intrigue of titled circles in London to the thrills and red-blooded action of life on the African veldt is the scope of George Melford's latest production, "The Woman Who Walked Alone" featuring Dorothy Dalton, which opened last night at Gordon's Strand Theatre, Dorchester.

week to find out just who "Nellie Kelly" is. The all-round excellence which is expected of a Cohan production, and the fact that the engagement is for a limited one, accounts for the record sale of seats. The company will open in New York early in September.

WELL BALANCED CARD AT KEITH'S

Color dancing numbers, exceptional singing and some real comedy are the principal things which help to make up the bill at Keith's this week. Leading a well balanced card are the Nicholson Sisters in their fourteenth annual Keith engagement.

The Misterstingers are also a welcome. They received plenty of hearty applause and well deserved it. Each of which seemed to outdo the other. Will & John Watson, presided at the piano and in their inimitable manner added to these popular songs was also enjoyed.

Walsh and Norton in a comedy skit entitled, "Two Fools" tried hard to be humorous in parts but Marguerita Padula in a song act was all that could be desired. Mc Kee in "The Jay Bird" furnished plenty of entertainment.

A minstrel revival, "The Comebacks," with James R. Bradley, George W. Cunningham, Al Edwards, Eddie Horan and Joseph Norcross also scored a hit. Others on the bill are James Cassle and Isabelle Lamal in "Lie in review," a one act play, "Thank You, Doctor," Ann Lins and Harry Miller in "At the Charity Bazaar," and Nabla the Tuban Diana, in a series of statuesque poses.

GORDON'S SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—Jack Holt's new Paramount starring picture, "The Man Unconquerable," was the feature picture shown at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre. It is a story of a cat power, dealing as it does with a young man who has been reared with a profound respect for law and order. He upholds his peaceful principles in his new position in the South Pacific and he resolves that he will maintain his peaceful principles in his new position.

COOLIDGE SOFT PEDALS FROM STATE HOUSE

Fears that Washington would spoil "our Cal" are well founded. Today Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, returned to his old haunts at the State House, where he ruled as Governor in the troublesome "law and order" days.

Reports that Calvin was in the Governor's office spread rapidly and a crowd of State House friends gathered to meet their old chief.

Time passed and the friends waited. More time passed, and still they waited. No Cal emerged. An investigation was started. It was soon discovered that Cal, like royalty escaping from the mob, had left by a back stairway.

The state House proceeded to vote Cal to stay.

TIPPERARY AND KILKEEN ARE CAPTURED

Dublin, Aug. 1.—The condition of Harry Boland, former secretary to Eamon de Valera in the United States, who was shot while trying to evade arrest at Skerries on Sunday, is critical, it was announced today at the hospital where Boland is under treatment. One bullet penetrated his liver.

Boland made an effort to resist arrest. He attempted to seize the guns of the soldiers who surrounded him and tried to thrust them to one side. He was in flight when he was shot down.

By International News Service.

Dublin, Aug. 1.—Free State troops in their drive southward on Cork have captured Tipperary and Kilkeen, it was announced today.

Four regulars were killed in action at Tipperary and three others wounded. The casualties of the irregulars are not known. Several irregulars were made prisoners.

Large quantities of war materials fell into the hands of the Free State forces.

The irregulars before being driven from Tipperary blew up the water mains and burned the barracks. They also set the torch to the big flour industrial plant in the city.

At Kilkee the irregulars burned the barracks and the customs station. Two rebel leaders, Commandant Lilly and Commandant Keane were captured.

Irregulars are said to control nearly all of Munster. They are levying taxes and commandeering food supplies.

Cork is described as undergoing a reign of terror. Newspapers have been suppressed and the rebels are seizing all sorts of supplies.

De Valera was last reported at one of the headquarters posts of the irregulars in Tipperary, worn and apparently discouraged. He was said to be losing his sway, but was attempting to regain it by displays of valor in leading ambush attacks on Free State troops.

Practically all these attacks failed and the irregulars have been compelled to make one retreat after another, destroying the countryside behind them. Their retirement has been marked by a trail of devastation and destruction.

The Free State troops are continuing to drive closer to Cork, the chief stronghold of the rebels. They are carrying out an encircling movement with the forces in the central counties attempting to move in a southwesterly direction while the troops on the coast east of Cork remain stationary.

DeValera Trying to Keep War Going Till December

By DANIEL O'CONNELL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, Aug. 1. Prisoners captured by the Free State troops said today that Eamon DeValera, chief of the Republican rebels, hopes to continue the guerilla warfare until December.

They declare that DeValera believes that if he can keep up hostilities till December, he will have prevented ratification of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty.

TARIFF MAKES NEW DELAYS ON BONUS

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, Aug. 1.—New delay in bonus legislation was predicted today as a result of Senator Carraway's resolution to investigate Senators' individual financial interests in the tariff bill.

If the members of the Senate hadn't insisted on talking about things other than about tariff and hadn't insisted on making the same speeches over and over the Senate would be able to take up the bonus bill by the middle of August," Senator McCumber, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, declared.

There is no hope now that the tariff legislation will be out of the Senate and in conference by August 15, as has been planned for many weeks. Senator McCumber would not commit himself as to when it was. If he possible to get at the bonus legislation but to the general opinion that the tariff that at least another month of tariff talk blocks such hopes.

I have read the President intended to veto the bonus bill and because I back into Congress," Senator Borah added and that I think at present really has the bill before him he will sign it and make it possible to help out the men who so richly deserve it."

JOCK MALONE TELLS WHY HE WILL WIN OVER WALKER

By JACK CONWAY

"Mickey Walker is beating his tom toms so as to keep up his own courage," was the opening shot of Jock Malone, who battles at the Boston Arena tomorrow night, as he paraded into the sporting department today. "I have read some of Walker's remarks," continued the St Paul man, "and I have been amused.

"Walker knows way down deep in his heart that he can't beat me. But he won't admit this fact even to himself. And he's now trying to instill fighting spirit into himself by making bitter, mean attacks against me.

"Gate at the old left mitt. It's fit as a fiddle. Notice that the swelling has all disappeared from the knuckles. And there were doctors in this town who tried to bunk me into believing that the swelling that prevented me from meeting Walker a month or so ago was a natural condition. I knew my true condition as did the three doctors I had examine my injured hand.

"But now I'm right and will be able to show at my best against Mickey. He'll think he's opposed by a regiment of fighters tomorrow night, as all he'll see will be gloves.

"I would rather defeat Walker than Johnny Wilson. 'Al because Mickey has set himself up as the great I am of the middleweight division. Just because he's knocked out some dubs he thinks he's cock of the walk.

Jock Says Left Hand Will Gain Him Victory

"My left hand will gain for me a victory. I'll pop away at Walker until he is dizzy. Then I'll crowd in close and try for a knockout. I would dearly like to knock some of the conceit out of the New Jersey miller. I've fought Jack Stone and Johnny Karr since my hand got well and I am now prepared to enter the ring and show at my best.

"If I win, I'll bid a challenge at Johnny Wilson. I would naturally like to be the champion of my class. Of course, if Wilson won't fight me, I'll take on any other middleweight. I have never put up the bars on anybody. When I do, it will be about time for me to quit the ring. I will then go into business for which I feel I am well qualified after having spent some $20.00 on my education."

Walker Is Due to Arrive Here Today

Walker is due to bow into our midst today. He has been training near his home at Elizabeth, N. J., and has recovered from the attack of sunburn which necessitated the postponement of the bout from Monday until tomorrow night.

It will be interesting to watch Walker shoot forth with his heavy punches. Mickey is considered the hardest hitter the middleweight class has known since the days of Stanley Ketchel.

The Arena bout will in some ways be similar to the Leonard-Tendler affair. Malone, like the lightweight champion, is a fast, brilliant boxer and a rare ring general. His long left hand has enabled him to outbox most of his rivals. There is also stinging power in his left which shoots straight and true to the mark. Then he has a right hand sock in reserve which lands with considerable force and which is also used to block the enemy thrusts.

Walker, on the other hand, gets his greatest delight in standing in the centre of a ring and walloping away with an opponent. This is the style of fighting which also brings the greatest joy to Tendler.

Walker, like Tendler always shows up an opponent over-impressive. He hits him. His recent battle with Lou Bogash proved the effect of his heavy punches. Bogash had a fourteen-pound weight advantage, which enabled him to win early rounds by sheer strength and bulldog tenacity.

Then the Walker punches began to show their effect on the heavy Bogash. Lou slowed up beginning with the sixth round and from that point on it was all Walker. Lou grabbed a close decision on account of his fine work in the early sessions, but if the mill had gone a couple of more chapters the decision would have gone to Mickey.

Billy Shine of Quincy, one of the most promising of our young box ers, will have it out once more with Freddy Warren of Cambridge in the semi-final of eight rounds. These lads recently engaged in a torrid battle at the Arena, Shine grabbing a close decision. Warren now wants revenge.

South Boston Johnny Downes and Irish Kid Williams of Worcester will furnish the thrills in another eight-round match, while Bert Jones of Revere and Johnny Buff of Charlestown will also clash in an eight-session affair.

CURTIN IN LINE FOR LYNCH BOUT

It looks as if that great little Son of Erin, Irish Johnny Curtin, the bantamweight champion of New Jersey and also of New England, will be the first man to battle with Joe Lynch for the latter's lately acquired world's bantam title.

Joe Lynch.

Eddie Meadh, acting for the champion, and Charley Doessenick, representing Curtin, are now negotiating to bring the little bantams together, while the fans await the outcome of their dickering with great interest.

Prior to the championship contest at New York Velodrome, in which Buff lost his title to Joe Lynch, the former champ was matched to meet Curtin at the ball park in Jersey City.

Johnny Curtin.

Curtin does not intend to remain idle while waiting to come to terms. He will box Young Montreal at the Clinton Oval of Woonsocket, R. I., on Friday night.

Montreal Battles Curtin

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 1—Young Montreal Rhode Island contender for the bantamweight championship will swing into action here next Friday night after a forced layoff of two months, when he will meet Johnny Curtin of Jersey City.

Harry Wills to Tell "How I Will Beat Jack Dempsey

"How I Will Beat Jack Dempsey" is the title for a series of articles prepared for the Boston American by Harry Wills, colored heavyweight challenger. Paddy Mullins has informed the Boston American that the championship battle will take place at an open-air arena before the snow flies. Therefore, fight fans will be eager to get Wills' own story of the coming ring contest. The negro champion tells how he began his ring career, the system by which he mounted the ladder of success, the campaign which ended in his signing to battle the world's champion and most important of all the line of battle which he feels confident will gain him a victory over "Tiger Jack."

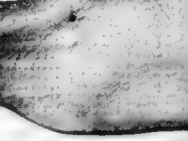
NEW HAMPSHIRE FANS TO HAVE A RUTH DAY

On September 28, 100 New Hampshire fans, from a dozen towns, will come to Fenway Park to see Babe Ruth. They will sit in a group, give Babe a Winnipesaukee mounted trout, give him a lunch at Young's Hotel and invite him to Meredith to umpire a game. Meredith is Babe's Winter home, and he made a hit there Winter before last, when he cleaned out a dance hall because rowdies from another town were displeasing to the Meredith girls. When in Meredith Babe lives with Leon Durant, the town plumber. Myrtle Moulton of Meredith, who was the Boston chum of Mrs. Helen Ruth, brought Mrs. Ruth to Meredith and Mrs. Ruth brought Babe, and that's why the Meredith Babe Ruth day was planned.

JOCK READY TO SCORE K. O.

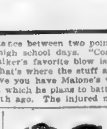
"What is the shortest distance between two points, Gill?" queried Jock Malone. "A straight line," shot back the Sporting Editor as he he remembered some of the rules of mathematics he studied back in high school days. "Correct," continued Jock. "And that's why I'll look Mickey Walker at Boston Arena tomorrow night. My best punch is a straight left to the jaw. Walker's favorite blow is a left hook to the same spot. Suppose Walker starts a left hook as I let go with one of my straight left hand punches. Which blow will score first?" "That's where the stuff about the shortest point between two objects is a straight line comes in," replied Gill. "Correct again," whirred back Malone. "Such a bright class." Always you have Malone's winning smile. Will he have cause to smile after his quarrel with Walker tomorrow night? Below in close-up of Jock's cushioned left hand with which he plans to batter his way to a victory over the Jack Bulger carry from his bout with Walker a month ago. The injured muscles are now O. K. which Jock says will mean K. O. for Mickey. This is the hand which made it necessary for Jock to withdraw from the match. He was not conscious of this breach until told so after he had played his next shot, from which position he could have handily won the hole.



GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

Only two open tournaments are scheduled this week. The regular annual Hatherly gathering is listed for Friday and Saturday, play being permitted on either day. At Great Barrington the Wyantenauck Country Club hold a medal and match play affair on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Several Boston boys are slated to be present at this, and the word is being passed along that this tournament is one of those regular affairs such as the Springfield Country Club conduct every June, divisions for everybody and one good week of fun and golf.



Herd and Taylor play at Manchester on next Monday in two matches. Harry Lowis and Jack Gray will be their morning opponents and D. E. Miner and Peter O'Hara in the afternoon.

Much praise is due the Nashua greenkeeper for the excellent condition of his greens. They are way ahead of what they were a month ago when the amateur-pro event was staged there. They are very fast and have plenty of speed, but are true.

Wollaston's third hole and the two new marsh holes are practically ready for seeding. The prospects of the long talked of Wollaston changes are resuming the proportions of actualities. The new holes will be high class modern affairs in every sense of the word and while the new yardages will not show a great increase, the new arrangement of the tees and change in their order of play will locate the new and much more scenic holes in a scoring way, and Wollaston will have a better golf course, a few of the blind holes being done away with complete.

Richard Henry of New Hampshire, freshman last year, will be eligible for the Dartmouth golf team in the Fall and his performances this Summer indicate that he will add strength to the team. Several young players in the Granite State are coming along fast and it will not be long before more Guilfords and Bassets will be in the making. A young chap who will bear watching is Paul Sadler, a Nashua youth and a student at Exeter, who is expected to be wearing a "green" sweater soon.

* * *

In the recent State championship at Nashua, an incident occured which taught its lesson to those who persist in refusing to learn the rules of golf. On the fifth tee of an extra hole match in the early rounds of this championship, the two opponents stood all even. One of the players had not allowed enough room to escape the transverse brook on the second hole and he had failed in it on his second shot, not far from the green. His opponent, to this point, had played the hole miserably and was about ready to give the congratulatory shake. The lad who was in the brook, playing one off two, believed his chances were good for digging out the ball from the water hazard and proceeded to do so but just before striking at the ball, he, inadvertently reached for a stone in the water which was apparently not in his way, and threw it out of the ditch, thereby losing the hole and the match.

GIRL SWIMMERS MEET IN TITLE CONTEST

New York, Aug. 1.—The first international swimming classic ever arranged—the Joseph P. Day 10-mile race for women—is contested this afternoon over a three-and-a-half mile ocean course from Manhattan Beach to Brighton Beach. A record entry of fifty two of the world's leading mermaids has been received for the blue ribbon event of the year in aquatics, which will be conducted by the New York Women's Swimming Association.

The race will be truly international, for Europe has sent its greatest girl swimmer in years, Miss Hilda James of Liverpool, England, especially for the Day Cup competition.

This seventeen-year-old champion holds every Continental and British swimming record for women, and is also the world's record holder for 300 and 440 yards.

Heading the list of American entrants is Miss Helen Wainwright, the sixteen-year-old Long Island lassie, who is recognized as the world's premier all-around woman swimmer.

Miss Wainwright only last Saturday clipped 11 4-5 seconds from Ruth Hultbrey's record for 220 yards and rules a slight favorite for the individual prize, a sterling silver replica of the Day perpetual trophy.

Leading U. S. Girl Swimmers Compete.

Miss Wainwright scored for America in the last Olympic games, as three other girls who represented this country in Antwerp in 1920 will be among the starters today.

They are the Misses Aileen Riggin, who won the Olympic fancy diving championship; Eleanor Thi of Philadelphia and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of Atlantic City.

Among the other out of town entries are Miss Mansell Robertson of Dorchester and Mary Mellory and Margaret Davior of Philadelphia.

The performance of Miss James in the Day cup race will be noted with interest by swimming experts, as the English girl is the only lady entry to adopt the American side-stroke with success. This will be Miss James' first appearance in this country and, next to Miss Wainwright, her chances of ultimate victory are rated very highly.

The start of the race is scheduled for about 3 p. m. The girls and their escorts will assemble at 1:45 p. m. at the Brighton Beach Baths where they will dress for the event, and from there the swimmers will be conducted to the starting line.

The entire party will be conveyed to the Manhattan Beach Baths, where a boat will take them to Riche's Point, in Rockaway Inlet, from which point the race will start.

Six Youngsters to Try for Honors

Miss Edaida Hultbrey won the event last year in 6 minutes 47 seconds. This was supposedly for 3¼ miles, but a checkup a few weeks ago showed the route she traversed was only 3 miles 1,000 yards and the Day Cup committee then extended the course to the required 3¼ miles.

Among the competitors this afternoon will be six girls who range in age from ten to twelve years. The youngest starter will be Miss Julia Marmorstein, ten, who a year ago swam over a mile before she was forced to drop out.

WOMEN FIGHT FANS WANT TO SEE DEMPSEY

The greatest crowd of women folks that ever attended a boxing show in Boston will be at the ringside to greet Jack Dempsey when he boxes four rounds for the benefit A. C. of Staves Field Friday night. Frankie Ryan of Everett will clash with Freddie Maiden of East Boston; Tommy Cotter of Quincy will box with Pat McKenny of Ware; Young Gradwell and Young Tenney will be the next in order and the wind-up will bring Jack Meehan and George Robinson together for another of their furious scraps.

RACING RESULTS TO BE FLASHED TO RADIO FANS

The Boston American is now broadcasting by radio the horse racing results through the Amrad Station at Medford Hillsides. These results are sent broadcast every evening except Sunday at 6 30 o'clock as part of the Boston American Sports Broadcast, which includes major league baseball scores and other snappy, up-to-the-minute sports news.

The final baseball scores are transmitted as soon as they are received. The late news service, which is now broadcast at 7 45, will be sent out immediately following the sports news, beginning next Monday.

GIRL ATHLETES SAIL FOR FRANCE

New York, Aug. 1—They're off!

The American girl track athletes who will compete in the first women's international track meet in Paris, August 20, sailed for Europe on the Aquitania today as Uncle Sam's first representatives to go abroad and compete in track events for women. They promise to bring home the laurels.

Thirteen stalwart, bright-eyed girls, muscles hardened, minds determined, declare they will hurdle broad jump and sprint America to fame in a new field of sport.

Not one bit of candy, cake or pastry has passed into the rosy mouths of the thirteen for a month. They have been in training and Dr. Harry Eaton Stewart of New Haven kept them on a rigorous diet test. Every night the curfew has rung for them at 10 o'clock. Every day they have trained in the parks of Newark, N. J., to meet the girl "champs" of England, France and Switzerland. Czecho-Slovakia and Belgium.

GRANT FAILS TO LAND NEW STARS IN TRADE

By NICK FLATLEY

Midnight tolled the knell of the big league trading season, so now the Yankees and Giants will have to win their pennants without any further recourse to the big bankrolls.

The wild and virulent vowls emerging from St. Louis, Chicago and other villages where the sun still believe all chance of glory has been washed away in Gotham dollars will doubtless start a move for some legislation preventing mid season trading.

Seems fair enough that the boys willing to stand the money should improve their business, but the birds who like to hang onto the cash will very likely do something enough to start something.

Be that as it may, there can be no more bolstering of the flag chasers, except from minor league sources as the rest of the campaign will doubtless be devoted solely to the playing end of the game.

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Dr. Bretherick, the family physician, advised Remember to go West. This she did, writing her parents a fictitious tale of having married and lost her "husband." She falls from a cliff and is told that the accident caused the death of her unborn child. Remember arrives in Los Angeles and determines to "pay the price" for a chance in the movies, but is refused. She is coached by Director Claymore and nearly loses her life in a storm scene. Father Steddon writes a scathing letter. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is stirringly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest novel. Go on with the story.

AND now when Mem and her mother went to the vast waiting room and she bought many moving-picture magazines, there was only one of them that omitted a picture of her own, and that magazine promised for the next month an article about her as the most promising star of the morrow.

The morrow and the next month! What would they do to her? What would she do the world next month?

The immediate morrow found her on the train again, and starting into the dark in a blissful, forward-looking nightmare. The dark was like the inside of her eyelids when they closed, a mystic sky of purple nebulae, widening circles of flame, crawling rainbows. Infinitesimal comets rushing through the interstellar deeps of her eyelids.

She had forced her mother to accept the full space of the bed made up on the two seats; she chose the narrow couch and maidenly solitude.

She slept fill that night. Or rather, she lay awake well. Her mind was an eager loom, gleaming with bright threads that flowed into tapestries of heroic scope.

She was a personage of importance, a genius with a future, an artist of a new art, the youngest and the best of the arts, the young Pantagruel born about the year that she was born. It had already beatridden the narrow world like a Columbus and had made the universal language a fact. She was speaking this long-sought Esperanto for everybody to understand.

Her art was good to her and she must be good to it. It demanded a kind of celibacy, as some religions did. Perfection in celibacy was not to be attained in either field, and the temptations to lawful wedlock and stodgy domesticity were as fierce and burning as to lawless whim.

But here she was on her way to glory. Yet she tossed in loneliness! A pauper of love. Well, she was fulfilling the newly discovered destiny of her sex.

During the night the train crossed the meridian that would have led her to her old home in Calverly and her father. He had advanced a little, but not much from the most ancient patriarchal ways, from the time when a fa ther influenced his daughter, before she left her cradle, to some boy who had hardly fallen out of his, and married her, as soon as nature permitted, to a husband she had perhaps never seen till he lifted her veil and led her away to a prison called home, a locked stable where she would be kept for breeding purposes and supplemented with other inmates if she failed of her one great duty.

They had thought it beautiful not so long ago for a fourteen-year-old child to have a ch d. Now, in the more decent States, it was called abduction or seduction to marry a girl, even with her parents' consent, before she was sixteen; the husband could be sent to prison for the crime.

Today all the American women were voters; millions of them were independent money makers. And this seemed right to Mem, though preachers had shrieked that it meant the end of all morality. But morality is as indestructible as any other human instinct. The obscene old ideal, that reproduction was the prime obligation of womanhood, revolted Mem. What was the use of devoting one's life merely to passing life along to another generation? The fish, the insects, the beasts of the field, did that much and only achieved progressless progress on round and round the same old ring of instincts; each generation handed over like a slave to unborn masters, themselves the slaves of the unborn. Who profited?

To the women of Mem's time and mind the old-fashioned woman was neither wise nor good, but a futile female who deserved the slavery she accepted.

For each generation to climb as high as it could was surely its first duty. Love would take care that successors should be born, and science would protect the young better than all the old motherwording systems. It was only in the last few years that science, freed from religious meddling, had checked the awful rate that had slaughtered infants by the billion under priestly rule. And now birth control was the crying need.

The morrow and the next month! What would they do to her!

Marriage had never been the whole duty of man, and Mem was sure that never again would it be the whole duty of woman. A man had always heretofore had time be sides to assure his own career before he took on the fetters of matrimony. And a woman would always hereafter feel the same thing.

Terrible euphemisms for playfulness muscalled meekness, submissiveness, modesty, piety, propriety had been held as lashes over women for ages. Now whipping was out of style. A girl could go where she pleased and go alone. She could take care of herself better than men had ever taken care of her. There had always been something wrong about letting the wolves elect themselves as guardians of the ewe lambs.

Her mother was with Mem and that satisfied some people. It made her father happier. But the real reason for her mother's presence was that Mem wanted the poor old soul to get a little fun out of life before it was too late. She and her mother were merely young girl and old girl in a globe-trotting adventure.

Mem was still awake, or was wakened from a half sleep, when the racket of the wheels upon the rails sounded a deeper note. She guessed that the train must be crossing a bridge. She rose and leaned softly across the bed where her mother dreamed of the old home and the exhausting demands of her children.

Mem lifted the edge of the curtain aside a little and peered out. The train was in midair, passing through a chaos of reading girders. The vast water that swept beneath, moonlit and placid, was the Mississippi, going South in the night. It would soon flow past Calverly. She remembered that she had once thought of drowning herself in its flood to hide her shame there and solve her problem. The equation of all the ins and y's of her life had seemed to be zero. Now it was infinity. How wonderful it was that she had not yielded to despair! It gave her an idea for a picture.

Nearly everything was taking the scenario form in her meditations nowadays. Wouldn't she make a great film to show a desperate girl flinging herself in a river to be her shame and to try to have it roll before her the life she might have lived if she had not drowned herself? Scenes of struggle and triumph, tenderness and helpfulness, joy and love could follow and then fade out to the drifting body of the dead girl who had lost her chance.

Mem saw herself in the role, and she shivered with the delight of the inspiration. Then she sighed. The censors would never permit the film. Girls must not go wrong or commit suicide on the screen. They could go on sinning and slaving in real life, as they had always done in drama, but the screen was in slavery now and must remember its cell.

But she at least was outward-bound, toward the morning that was marching toward her beyond the somber hill of slumber. She breathed deep of the auroral promise in the very stars, whose light was dying in the greater light, even while they lay shuddering beds of quicksilver scattered along the sky.

The next Mem knew was the shatter of the doorbell. Tips porter called through the metal panel a warning that Chicago was losing toward them out of the East, and they must make ready to leave the train.

They scurried to get up and pack and out. Then they went, with their baggage, across the roaring streets to the Lake Shore station and got breakfast there—this on the advice and under the guidance of an affable gentleman who met them and said that he represented the Liquid Comp any at Los Angeles, and had been ordered by Mr. Dunwood to take especial care of Miss Steddon. At first I to look as if she were used to such distinction, but she failed to care.

Her data was all they had for learning Chicago. It was even larger and busier than Los Angeles! Mem felt lost and ignored until she saw in a bulbous glimmer of unlighted electric letters hung in front of a big motion picture theatre the name of her latest film. The theatre would not open until eleven, but her own pictures were scattered about the lobby. And that was something tremendous.

She and her mother drank drop of this cup of fame. They took their luncheons sensible to the Twentieth Century Limited. They had not yet left Chicago when the train stewardess rapped at the door and asked their names against the possibility of a telegram. Mem noted how her mother sat a little higher with proud hope as she answered:

"Miss Remember Steddon and mother."

There were flutters in Mrs. Steddon's eyes as it exclaimed in points to the grey weather's eyes. After a crumbling she taken, as his pencil stumbled on the pad, he wrote:

"That name is very familiar in our here, if you'll excuse me. Your wife are you are the largest owner of them all, and I must say I agree with her, if you don't mind."

Mem didn't mind. She gave him one of her queerest smiles, and concealed her own agitation until he had closed the door on his. She was encountering strangers who had loved her and were hopeful for her! Wonderful!

Winter was in full sway outside, but the train slid across the white world like a skater, and there was a lilt in its rush. The next morning found the Hudson along side, moving slowly under its plate mail of ice to New York.

Mrs. Steddon loyally denounced the river as far inferior to her own Mississippi, but Mem found the New York stream better groomed, somehow. It seemed to be used to great cities. It led on to the metropolis of metropolises the New York that she was come to conquer. She wondered if the city would be nice to her. She had heard that it had a mind of its own and that it never knew who came or went. Yet the Chicago courier had said that New York was "the richest village in the U. S. A., just a bundle of small towns."

Whatever it was, it was destiny. Yet here again the long arms of Dermond had provided her with a reception committee—a most affable gentleman from the New York office, and two photographers, one with a motion camera. Also two or three young reporters, whose stories would never be published. But neither they nor Mem knew it, and she underwent the pleasant ordeal of being interviewed on the station platform.

Rooms had been reserved for her at the Gotham, and she went to them in a every of attendants. It was a good deal of a job for a young girl, and when she and her mother were left alone, each in hysteric, she flung herself down on a divan and by surprise, another Insane smothered under the raining favors of the gods on high.

There was more and more to come. Her experience of the city had been augmented by millions of visitors, to whom the high buildings, the Metropolitan Opera, the Metropolitan Art Museum, the Aquarium and other things metropolitan were the realization of old dreams.

On her first Sunday night in town she and her mother went to the theatre, the supreme word in motion picture exhibition. The row art had already in this building the largest theatre in the world.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

By ANN LISLE

"WHAT a garden we've been invited to visit this evening, Neal!" he commented in his delighted warm voice.

What a garden we've been invited to visit!

Oh — how nice!" cried Phoebe, clapping her hands. "I can see that my first home-coming 'Mrs. Hyland' dinner is going to be a splendid success!"

Carlotta beamed and Neal cried:

"If you're going to make all the pretty speeches, Tony, then I reserve the right to make all the love, Carlotta, my child, I refuse to omit anything as beautiful as you from the hugging specialty which Babbs insists is my one best bet. Boy — fellows — imagine C. Sturges trying to talk business to any man if she didn't hide herself in tailor-mades and under sailor hats."

We all chuckled good naturedly at Neal's fooling. But Carlotta, yielding for a second to the encircling arm he flung about her, turned to Tony with a little gesture as sweet as it was tel-tale.

"The house-owner has had enough compliments now," she said. "It's the turn of the bride and then the hostess—your Babbie and my Nancy-Anne—to claim the centre of the stage. I often think, folks, that I never had any real friends—or a circle where I felt I belonged until Anne came along with her wonderful gift of attracting groups of the nicest people in the world."

Bertha announced dinner just then, so I had a chance to dab my eyes with a handkerchief. I knew that the love which was expressing itself now would go right on radiating me-ward all through the evening. I loved it—but it didn't seem fair that Neal should have to turn his attention from Phoebe, and that anything should stand between Tony and an absorbing consciousness of Carlotta's loveliness.

The more the other four gave me the centre of the stage the less I felt it right that these friends who loved me should have to stand between me and—loneliness. I couldn't help feeling an outsider.

Phoebe and Neal are so happy that they take no thought of Virginia. If they remembered her aloofness it doesn't touch their perfect happiness—their complete oneness. Virginia isn't necessary to them. Nor am I.

At the end of the dinner, as we were going to the sun-room for coffee, Neal lagged behind, holding me back for an instant. Phoebe walked ahead hand in hand with Carlotta and Tony stalked in their wake.

"Babbs" Neal whispered. "Ad you've got to [illegible] Carlotta? And [illegible] to Tony after [illegible] Phoebe? Is [illegible] Tower turning toward [illegible]? Is [illegible] the old [illegible] can't seem to grasp that a beautiful lady is crazy about [illegible]."

"Neal, what do [illegible]?" I demand, striving to protect Carlotta's secret.

"Nix on the large-eyed innocence, Babbsie! You're not blinder than a nest of bats, so how can you help seeing that our Carlotta is Tony's wife for the asking? And I'm blest if I can see what's stopping the old duffer. By Heck! That's it—I've got it!"

"Got what?" I demanded.

"What's stopping Tony. It's because Tony thinks he's an old duffer. See it Babbs? He thinks he's plenty good enough material for a kind house-friend, a loyal god-father, and a present-help to those in trouble. But he doesn't dope himself out as any good for a romance. He wouldn't dare aspire. That's it!"

"I fear you're right," I said. "But what are we going to do about it?"

Civilising the Eskimos

THE Bureau of Education for the natives of Alaska points out that in a single generation the reindeer industry has raised the Eskimos one entire stage in the scale of civilization —from nomadic hunters to pastoral people.

IF the world had been without wars or epidemics since the year 138 A. D., statistics show that the present population of over 1,500,000,000 could have descended from the people at that time.

Landru—His Secret Love Affairs

First Authentic Story of French Bluebeard, Who Won 283 Women, Written By William Le Queux

THE assassin Landru was nearly caught one day as he sat in a cafe, and escaped only by his surprising presence of mind and agility.

When he entered the bare, garish place, well lit, and alluring to the night revellers, he saw the old furniture dealer, Caillard, seated with two men he knew—notorious blackmailers and souteneurs. He joined them, and for an hour he sat at the table, yet reflecting upon the innocent chance-met girl who was asleep in his flat.

He was sipping his cafe-cognac and laughing at a good story which old Caillard had told them when, of a sudden, before even he was aware of it, a rather slim, black-moustached man, poorly dressed, came to the table and said:

"You are Raymond Diard! You are under arrest for the murder of Madame Cuchet and her son!"

The instant the detective uttered the name of Diard he sprang to his feet, for his agility equalled his cunning, and on glancing at the door he saw two plain-clothes officers of the Surete guarding it. Quick-witted, he knew that there was a door at the further end of the cafe with which he was so familiar, therefore, ere the detective could seize him, he had slipped around the table, and slinging his chair behind him across the officer's path between a row of tables, caused the man to trip up and fall, and ere his colleagues could assist him or stop the wanted man, the latter was out of the other door and dashing across the Place Pigalle.

He heard the loud shouts of the police as he dived into a certain few narrow streets behind the Rue Duperre, with all of which he was quite familiar.

Presently, when he found himself clear, he ceased running, but walked at a brisk pace, avoiding a policeman on duty at the corner of the Rue de Clichy. Afterwards he traveled in a circle until he reached the Batignolles quarter, where, in a short, narrow street called the Rue Caroline, he entered a frowsy-looking house and called upon one of his friends, a plausible sorcoe like himself, whom he knew as Paul Lajeune. The latter, a man whose profession was that of rat d'hotel, or hotel thief, happened to be at home. Therefore, in the narrow, ill-furnished little sitting-room, Landru told him of his narrow escape, and afterwards remained there the night and in the morning, fearing to be recognized by his dress, he drove in a taxi to where his wife was living.

Meanwhile, after his lightning-like escape by that clever ruse of flinging the chair in his would-be captor's path, the police, filled with chagrin at his escape, returned to question the friend with whom "Raymond Diard" had been sitting.

The wily old furniture dealer, Caillard, when questioned, declared, as the other two men had done, that he was only a cafe acquaintance. They had seen him there at The Soufflet on several occasions, and had chatted with him. But they were ignorant even of his name. All three expressed themselves full of pious horror that the man with whom they had just been laughing and chatting was a murderer.

"I really can't think that!" declared old Caillard. "I've known him here as a frequenter of this cafe for the past six months, and he always struck me as a charming man. His Christian name is, I believe, Lucien. He was here one evening with a lady, and she addressed him by that name."

"Perhaps it was the lady he murdered!" exclaimed Inspector Gaffiot of the Surete.

"She was a young lady—about twenty-two," replied Caillard. "I think she was English," he added, for as a crook, he was inventing a story for the benefit of the police.

"Ah! no. This Madame Cuchet who is missing was thirty-nine," said the detective. "But," he went on, "can neither of you gentlemen tell me anything more concerning this individual Diard, his habits, or where he lives?"

The criminal trio declared that they were in total ignorance, yet the truth was that Caillard knew very well that Landru's new abode was in the Rue de Mauberge, and those constant deals in women's furniture which he had with him were more than suspicious. Yet he never dreamed that, in order to gain the belongings of women, he murdered them. The documents were always in order. Never once had there been questions, so cleverly did old Jean Rosa imitate the signatures of his client's victims.

Caillard and his two friends were, in reality, very uneasy at finding themselves questioned by the police, for all three had served terms of imprisonment, and were professional criminals. But their combined wits carried them through. Their friend Landru had escaped, and, as far as they could, they were covering the unwelcome inquiries concerning him.

From the trio, as from the proprietor and waiters, the police could obtain no information of any value. The man they wanted often came in and drank his blonde, or light beer, or his cafe-cognac, and chatted affably with all and sundry. Therefore, Inspector Gaffiot was compelled to return to the prefecture of police and report a complete failure. That he had found the man alleged to be the assassin of Madame Cuchet and her son was evident from the fact that he had so cleverly evaded arrest, but to his dismay the alleged assassin was again lost in the labyrinth of the capital.

He consulted with his chief, who, sitting in the gloomy, green-painted room at the Prefecture, listened to the dismal report of his failure.

"This man has a distinctive appearance—deep set eyes and flowing beard"—he said. "Now, what will inevitably happen is that he will endeavor to alter his appearance. He will probably shave off his beard, and perhaps go clean-shaven. He may powder or paint his eyes, and thus render them more prominent."

"And if he has any money, m'sieur," added the well-known official Gaffiot, "he will probably leave Paris by taxicab, and when out in the suburbs take train to some distant point where he can be hidden for years."

The chief asked for a description as to how he escaped.

Gaffiot described how this mysterious man suddenly flung the chair across his path, tripping him up and causing him to fall heavily. Indeed, he had an abrasion on his jaw where he fell upon the edge of one of the marble-topped tables of the cafe.

"Well," said the chief, "we must circulate doleful news, I suppose. It is very unfortunate—but we will get him yet."

"After all, the allegation is only a suspicion," remarked the inspector. "The man Friedmann, who complained, has no actual evidence. His sister-in-law has disappeared—she went to London, Diard says. She may be there now for aught we know. You will remember, m'sieur, that over at Scotland Yard they are not infallible. Recollect the Alphonse Robert case. They reported him to be living in Walworth road, in London, yet all the time he was living here in the Rue de Madrid. Their silly law in England protects the criminal, and always hampers justice. They have no right of entering and searching as we fortunately have."

"I agree entirely, Gaffiot," replied the Chef de la Surete. "But this case of the disappearance of mother and son interests me. It is a mystery which we must elucidate."

Next evening Landru, delighted at having tricked the police whom he held in such contempt, dressed himself in a suit of clothes he had not worn for some months, and in a taxi went across Paris to his flat at 33 Rue de Mauberge, in search of his foundling love, little Andree Babelay.

The nineteen-year-old girl was still there, awaiting the return of the bearded man with the seductive voice who had behaved so kindly and generously towards her. In his absence she had made herself useful, and cleaned up and dusted the flat. She had found some coffee and bread, with some sardines, and had eaten a good meal.

"Ah! ma petite!" cried the arch assassin as he entered with his key. "I have been absent on business. Pray forgive me—eh? I have been all the time wondering how you have been getting on."

And glancing around he saw that she had been putting the room in order.

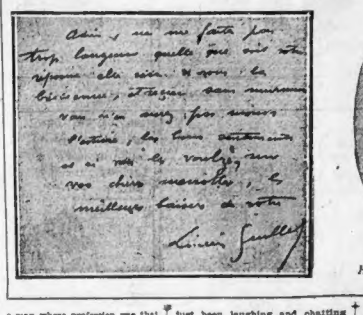
The Great Assassin and Facsimile of one of His Love Letters



Henri Landru, as he looked when he was put under arrest.

Landru's letters were always those of a devoted and impassioned lover. The excerpt here given, in his own writing, is the ending of a long and ardent epistle to Mlle. Fernande Segret, the only girl who ever went to Gambais and returned. She knew him as M. Guillet. He wrote:

Adieu! Do not keep me waiting too long, and, whatever be your answer, it will be welcome and accepted without complaint. You will have, none the less, the esteem, the good feelings and, if you accept, on your dear little hand the best kisses of

Yours, LUCIEN GUILLET.

THE STORY SO FAR

Landru's early life is described by M. Le Queux in the opening chapter of his story of the world's greatest love criminal. After years of petty swindling he turned his attention to victimising women, making love to them, getting control of their property, and then killing them. Mme. Cuchet was one of the first. Landru poisoned her and her son Andre in a villa rented with her money and burned their bodies in a furnace. He then made love to Mme Labord-Line. Meanwhile the police investigated his activities at the villa and he shrewdly played for time, going to Lyons and notifying them he would have to be gone a week or more. Meanwhile he made love to several other women, including Nina Langlois, to whom he wrote affectionately and got her to sign over her money. His affair with Elise Laporte followed. Next he killed Mme. Heon. Audree Babelay, a poor shopgirl, fell into his clutches.

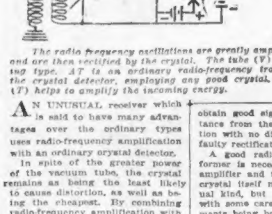
An Unusual Receiver



The radio frequency oscillations are greatly amplified by the tube, and are then rectified by the crystal. The tube (V) is of the amplifying type. AT is an ordinary radio-frequency transformer. CD is the crystal detector, employing any good crystal. The tickler coil (T) helps to amplify the incoming energy.

AN UNUSUAL receiver which is said to have many advantages over the ordinary types uses radio-frequency amplification with an ordinary crystal detector.

In spite of the greater power of the vacuum tube, the crystal remains as being the least likely to cause distortion, as well as being the cheapest. By combining radio-frequency amplification with crystal detection, it is possible to obtain good signals at some distance from the transmitting station with no distortion caused by faulty rectification.

A good radio-frequency transformer is necessary between the amplifier and the crystal. The crystal itself may be of the usual kind, but it should be used with some care, the tight adjustments being better than the cat-whisker type.

F. J., Waverly—Honeycomb coils are difficult to construct at home by reason of the peculiar winding. A good substitute are spider-web coils. These are made by making five or seven cuts to within an inch of the centre of a circular piece of cardboard about twelve inches in diameter, and then winding the wire in and out of the cuts.

R. L. D., Providence—Your difficulty is probably with your aerial, which should be at least three times longer (180 to 200 feet). Amateurs transmit on shorter wave lengths than the broadcasting station, so that you would be able to get them on a short aerial. The aerial should be about three-quarters of a wave-length in length, so this would be about 180 feet for the 360 meter broadcasts.

Answers to Radio Fans

T. F. R., Brighton—The best possible results can be obtained with a crystal detector by the hook-up shown today. However, if you wish to use just a single circuit, there is none better than the one generally employed, with variable condenser for sharp tuning, and crystal and phones in series. Covering the plates of a variable condenser with beeswax or paraffine will increase the capacity of the condenser somewhat, and so would be a good plan, provided the space between the plates was not increased. The advantage of a slider over a ten-point switch-gap is that it gives closer adjustment, and so does not require a variable condenser for tuning. Its disadvantage is that the slider eventually wears away the wires and is liable to make poor contact.

TIME TO BUY FURNITURE

—By Lorette C. Lynch—

JUST at this season of the year, it has become a custom for the furniture shops to hold a sale. At many shops, furniture may be stored until wanted, thus giving the Fall bride a chance to purchase her furniture at a considerable saving and have the privilege of storing it until wanted without additional cost.

Furniture manufacturers are now making dining room furniture within the reach of the average purse. The small breakfast room set has been elaborated and is now made from the better woods and may be used with propriety in the year-round dining room. It has this advantage, however—it is just the right size for the average small apartment or bungalow dining room.

Just such a dining set is made of antique walnut in a modified Italian Renaissance period style. The dining table is rectangular and the extension leaves folded under the main leaf, giving the effect when folded of the popular gateleg table.

The dish cabinet is tall but not wide. Here the delightful Italian is beautifully preserved. The doors are solid wood without the old fashioned show-case glass. There is a buffet-sideboard and five chairs besides the master armed chair. But the proportions of the furniture is entirely in keeping with small rooms and when set into an old blue and brown room with wall light in bright yellow silk, presents a most attractive effect.

A most attractive bedroom set is one of creamy white enamel, decorated with hand painted wreaths of delicate blue and pink flowers with just a green leaflet here and there. Outside of the twin beds and the usual chiffonobe and dresser and dressing table, the store displaying it shows a kidney-shaped dressing table stool upholstered in old rose tapestry silk. A small armchair, similarly upholstered, lends difference to the stereotyped enamel bedroom set.

Then there are a number of special pieces of furniture. Even a simple living room may be improved by the addition of a gateleg table or Martha Washington sewing device. There are a number of wicker pieces which might easily find placement in the home. For instance, a willow chair with arms, at five dollars, is a bargain for either the bedroom or the simply furnished living room.

Rottenness of Politics

Public Service Corporations Contribute Most of What There Is of This Nature

The Essex County League of Women Voters of Massachusetts held their second annual free-for-all political rally in the Berry Tavern one day last week. It was addressed by Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. Her subject was "The Rottenness of Politics." She quoted State Treasurer James Jackson as saying that he found the political game "too rotten to suit him, and it was only after much persuasion that he was running for office a second time."

Indeed! Poor Mr. Jackson! We know the gentleman very well. He is a very good man and an intelligent man within his experience, but his experience in politics is very limited, and does not justify him in saying that politics is too rotten for endurance. Even if it were true, Mr. Jackson would not of his own knowledge know it.

As a matter of fact, politics is not so rotten. The idea of the rottenness of politics has come from the public service corporations which have contributed most of the rottenness to politics by their successful efforts to control the laws by controlling the law-makers. These public service corporations are the agents of the people in carrying out those public functions which really ought to be performed by the government itself. Necessarily, therefore, the government has to regulate these corporations and naturally the corporations want to control the government which regulates them. That is the inherent vice in the private operation of public utilities and the consequence of it has been a persistent corruption of public servants during the last seventy years, beginning back in 1850 when the railroad corporations first gained their foothold.

Women naturally will ask why, if the public service corporations, like the railroads, the electric light companies and the street railways, are responsible for most of the rottenness of politics, they join in the hue and cry against the rottenness of politics. The answer is that they do it for two reasons. They do it just as the thief does, who cries, "Stop, thief," at an innocent bystander, while he, himself, is escaping with the stolen goods. They do it also because they want the public to believe that the government is too corrupt to take them over and operate them as government institutions. The process is simple. They first corrupt politics and then point to corrupt politics as the reason why there should be no public operation of the public service corporations.

But even with all the rottenness which public service corporations have caused in politics, it is no more rotten than the average business. There is no more graft in public office and it does not begin to reach the proportions of the graft in the management of many private businesses. Mr. Jackson comes from the banking atmosphere. Is he not aware of the extent to which those who control the people's money in the banks use it for their private advantage?

It is fashionable to sneer at the rottenness of politics, because you hurt nobody, but the sneer helps to make politics rotten because many good men hesitate to enter public life when it is considered so rotten.

Action of Canadian Roads

People of New England Should Appreciate Recognition of Interstate Commerce Commission Decision

We think that the people of New England ought to know more generally and to show appreciation of the Canadian railroads in recognizing the justice of the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission that the New England railroads ought to have a 15 per cent. increase in their division of the freight rates on freight carried over the several roads including their own. Of course, this decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission had no application to the Canadian railroads, for the Canadian railroads are beyond the power of any American authority.

These Canadian routes were in no wise obligated to change their divisions as they were not parties to the case before the commission. Their voluntary act is an indication they realize not only the importance of New England as a territory in which a large volume of desirable freight has its origin and destination, but also the necessity for New England lines being able adequately to serve those who ship and receive that freight.

This is international comity which we want the Canadian authorities to understand that we thoroughly appreciate and will, when possible, reciprocate.

English Law

Not So Good for Lawyers

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Mr. Taft, chief justice, went to England to study their efficient administration of law. Over there a man, even a POOR man, can get justice without delay.

If you have a suit against the railroad for £2, and you are in the right, you can get the money without spending five times as much on lawyers.

In this country if you had an absolutely good suit against the railroad for $1,000 any honest lawyer would tell you to drop it, that it would surely cost you more than a thousand dollars to prove your claim before the courts here.

Lawyers have too much to say about the law in this country. That's why law is expensive and SLOW—an excellent thing for lawyers, but bad for everybody else.

When Peter the Great saw all the lawyers with their white wigs in an English court he was amazed and said, "There are only three lawyers in Russia and I am going to hang two of them when I get back there." That was excess in the WRONG direction, but about half way between our system and Peter the Great's idea would be excellent.

Seniority

Editor Boston American:

The question of seniority seems to be the difficult obstruction in the way of a settlement of the railroad shopmen's strike. How suddenly this would disappear but for the selfishness of the loyal employes who declined to go out with their fellow workmen. They are at work and have been since the strike began at the reduced pay fixed by the government railroad board. If the strikers win, these men will benefit through their sacrifice, a sacrifice which they could not bring themselves to make. Is this not enough without robbing their colleagues of positions which are not legitimately vacant and which a sense of gratitude or even decency should preclude any of the loyal employes seeking seniority? Sub-Chasers

Editor Boston American:

In your "Seen and Heard" column, under date of July 28th, reference is made to the sub-chasers anchored off Pope's Hill. You also state that "many wonder why the Navy Department has not either sold or taken care of them." In this connection, permit me to say that these sub-chasers are no longer government property, as they were sold to a private concern in Lowell more than a year ago. From the time they were sold until the time of their removal a few months ago, these boats were taken care of at the U. S. destroyer and submarine base at Squantum.

It seems to me that the Navy Department has done more than its share in giving these sub-chasers berthing space and taking care of them for about one year, when it was not compelled to. SQUANTUMITE.

Drug Pictures

Editor Boston American:

On July 27th, Mr. John M. Casey wrote you a letter, published yesterday, the 28th, intimating that he had passed a film made by us, called "The Diamond Pipe," and approved by the narcotic agent in charge. Today, the 29th, we received the first official release from Mr. Casey, although the film was viewed by him two weeks ago.

Mr. Casey's statement that neither he nor Mayor Curley ever discussed directly or indirectly this film with any theatrical manager is a flat denial of Mr. Curley's previous statements made not only to us but to representatives of your paper and to other newspapermen, and also in flat denial of statements made before witnesses by theatrical and film men of this city.

We take this opportunity to thank you for your broad-minded, logical editorial in behalf of a picture bearing the personal endorsement of government officials, and participated in by them as a part of their endeavor to stamp out the drug traffic in Boston regardless of the amazing stand taken by certain local and poorly informed and counselled officials.

THE YOUNG MIND IS WRAPPED IN ITS OWN PROBLEMS

By Winifred Black

As fresh as a rose—and pink and sweet she looked. She was late for luncheon, to be sure, but dear me, she made such a picture when she swept in that nobody really minded.

Tall and slender and striking. Such at hat! No one else could have even looked at it. But she wore it and made something smart and fetching of every queer angle of it.

But she was not happy. Oh, not at all happy!

"I've been to the Turkish bath," she said, "and that's always a bad-weather sign for me. When ever I get too temperamental and too bored and too cross to live, I go and get rubbed and pounded, and that makes me quite mild again.

"But this time it doesn't seem to work.

"I don't believe anything will work any more.

"I ought to have died when I was in the hospital last Winter. No woman ought to live after she is thirty-five anyhow.

"A rose without a perfume. A star without a twinkle. The moonlight without magic—that's what a woman is without youth.

"What's the use? What's it all about? Why dress and massage and make yourself charming, when well you know that some little chit of seventeen is going to walk away with everything right before your face and eyes? Isn't that true?

And nobody said a word. Which wasn't strange, really. For not one woman at that table was in her first youth, and most of them had definitely passed middle age. Then the hostess gathered herself and began to speak—but the woman across the table interrupted.

"Now, my dear," she said, "now, now, don't be discouraged! Every woman goes through that time of wishing she was twenty again, or that she had said good-by some sweet moonlight night, when the white roses in the garden were drenched with dew and somebody was singing Schubert's 'Serenade' somewhere—but she gets over that, and so will you.

"Just a year or so and you will wonder how you could have thought you were really living, when you were so utterly wrapped up in yourself and your own affairs and what He said and He thought and He hinted and whether He really meant it and was He coming that evening or would he just telephone and all the rest of it.

"No one really lives—no, not anyone—till forty has arrived on the scene. And after forty comes fifty, such a good friend! Fifty years, so good-humored and philosophical, so generous and so kindly.

"Don't fret another minute, my dear. You don't know it, but you are just beginning to live."

And Temperamental Tessie looked as if someone had thrown a pitcher of cold water in her pretty, discontented, just-a-little-malicious face. And every other woman at the table looked as if she had just heard awfully good news from home, and didn't dare tell it.

After the luncheon was over and Temperamental Tessie had gone, the hostess collapsed on a cough and laughed till she could not speak.

The woman who had sat across the table laughed, too.

"Well," she said, "I think that will be the last time Tessie will tell a table full of middle-aged women that they are like roses without perfume and moonlight without magic."

Now what do you think of Tessie and of the woman across the table, and of what it all meant—really?

IS DAD'S HOME-COMING A HAPPY ONE?

Let Dad's home-coming be a happy one for him and the kiddies.

Later in the evening, if there is something about the children which he should know, tell him about it, but do not rouse him to anger and drive away his home-coming happiness by a demand that he give Susie a talking to, or Jimmie a strapping.

These are disagreeable things for him to do, and probably he has had many disagreeable things to perform during his working day effort and he feels that when he reaches home he should be free to enjoy a needed rest.

A man's home-coming should be as cheerful as possible.

Home should be a tonic to help a man to get through the next day of labor and do it well.

Besides, a tired man, annoyed by other things all day, is apt to be unjust and perhaps cruel to his children, if called upon to chastise them as soon as he reaches home.

For your husband's sake, for the children's sake, to make home happier for all of you, greet him with a smile.

SEEN AND HEARD

A TENANT complained to HERBERT E. ELLIS, chief adjuster of the City Rent and Housing Committee at City Hall, that his landlord was very annoying. Landlord had given them fourteen day's notice to vacate, which he considered rough treatment. Ellis sent for the landlord. He appeared, minus three teeth and with a blackened eye and said he was thrown out of his own home by said tenant. After viewing the landlord, ADJUDICATER ELLIS was firmly convinced that the landlord had been subjected to the "treat 'em rough" stuff quite enough.

Members of the City Council recently made a tour of inspection of the city institutions at Deer and Long Islands, Boston Harbor, and were pleased with the many improvements made by Institution Commissioner David J. Johnson, M. D., during his first four months as administration head. An innovation will be added this week, of allowing the prisoners to have recreation periods until 7:30 at night before entering their cells. Something never tried out before in any like institution in America.

Sign over weighing machine in Forest Hills section drug store reads: "Stout ladies, attention! This machine registers ten pounds under your real weight." Clerk says some of 'em try it and act a bit disgusted at results, but he declares the sign is true, since the machine will register weight of anything down to one ounce.

A spruce young man was seated in a Back Bay electric car going north. The car was full with a number of ladies standing. The young man closed his eyes. His companion nudged him, asking "Why are your eyes closed, are you sleepy?"

"No," he replied, "I keep them shut, because I cannot bear to see the ladies standing."

As I tear a sheet from my calendar,
I'm reminded that July is through,
And still another thought pervades my brain,
August is there and my month's rent is due!"

SUN PARLOR, SOCIAL ROOM, and SERVICE ROOM: Sounds like a new hotel coming to Boston. There are some of the many innovations in the new municipal building in the South End. JOHN R. McLEOD, superintendent of construction, says the building will be ready for occupancy in five weeks, and adds that it will be one of the show places of Boston's many municipal structures.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SUN SPOTS AND TREES

By Garrett P. Serviss

ONE of the curiosities of scientific investigation is the relationship apparently existing between spots on the sun and rings of growth in the trunks of trees. Everybody has heard how, by counting the number of such rings, shown when a log is sawed across transversely, beginning the count from the centre, or core, and continuing it out to the bark, the age of the tree may be told, each one of the concentric rings standing, on the average, for one year's growth. The system of nature is the tree's diary, in which it has drawn a plainly visible circle to mark every year of its life.

This is the theoretical basis on which rests the calculations of the age of huge ancient trees, like the giant sequoias of California, some of which show several thousand concentric rings, which are taken to prove that they have outlived, two or three times over, such passing phases of history as the Egyptian or Roman empires. When these mighty trees were young sprigs, no nation that still maintains an independent existence, unless it be China, had yet sprung into being!

It has been found, however, that the growth-rings are not invariable, or entirely trustworthy, marks of the passage of the years. Seasonal variations have an important influence upon their formation, and sometimes two, or even more, rings may be formed in a single twelve month.

The width of the rings is also variable, and may occasionally lead to deception. A prolonged favorable season, or a shorter season of exceptional pregnancy, may produce a very thick ring of growth, while a number of unfavorable seasons may pass leaving no clearly distinguishable growth marks. Thus, as so often happens in dealing with the clues that nature affords to her operations, the investigator is compelled to guide his interpretations more or less by the aid of collateral considerations and judicious selection.

Nevertheless, there can be no doubt that, on the average, the indications of growth-rings afford a good basis for estimating the age of trees. But, more than that, these rings constitute a record of the character and variation of the seasons, during hundreds and thousands of years in the past. It is in this way that they have been related with the cyclical variations in the sun's activity whose chief, visible, sign is found in the recurrence of sun-spots.

These have an average period of about eleven years, i. e., starting from a year when the spots are specially numerous and large, they are found to decline until almost none are seen, and then they increase again to another maximum, which is reached about eleven years later than the first one noticed.

When the spots are numerous the rainfall is apt to be increased, and this, together with associated conditions, favors tree growth, and the annual rings are more strongly marked and broader during the years of many sunspots than during the periods when the spots are few. Douglass has shown by studies of the yellow pines of Arizona and the sequoias of California, that an eleven-year period appears very clearly recorded in the growth-rings of very old trees of these varieties, and this is beyond doubt associated with the sunspot periods of centuries ago.

—Medbury Says—

Food Prices Are So High That the Neighbors Do Not Invite You to Dinner Now

The price of food is getting so high that people aren't asking us to dinner any more. The neighbors just invite us over to have dessert with them.

This is all right providing you are asked somewhere to have soup.

If you lived in a big neighborhood, you could even dig up a salad.

Course dinners are fine if you don't have to walk too far between courses.

It's getting so now that you have to call on four or five families before you can get enough to eat.

While the people next door are having you for dessert they may have asked somebody else to join them in the entree. You may hello to the folks who have come for the meat, and say goodby to the guest who has been there for the vegetables.

You can entertain a lot of company these days, but you have to be careful and remember whether you invited them for the mashed potatoes or the roast beef.

Your dinner guests won't bother you by remaining long because they'll have to leave right after the dessert and go to where they've been invited for finger bowls.

Some people don't serve finger bowls or napkins.

When they invite you to dinner they ask you to wear your old clothes.

One family ate out so much that their dog starved to death.

Now that folks are only asking us to eat certain parts of the meal with them, they'll have to print time tables.

We'll have to know what time they're serving the salad so we'll know when to leave the soup next door.

If they're late in serving the salad this would ball up our schedule, and we might not get connections with the dessert at the next place.

We'll have to have consolidated bill of fares so we'll know exactly what time the fish comes, and the fruit leaves.

Can you imagine getting a wire which would read like this: "Am delayed at soup; will arrive ten minutes later at entree."

Then you might get another telegram which would say: "Am just leaving salad, hold dessert."

And it wouldn't be long before we'd have to have a waiting room where diners could wait until their courses pulled in.
